JAPAN WILL EXPAND ITS CHINA WAR

Warns Neutral Powers Take Precautionary Measures In Region 700 Miles Inland

TOKYO, June 20—(AP)—Japan today notified neutral powers that the China war zone probably would be considerably expanded and warned them to take precautionary measures in a vast area extending some 700 miles inland from China's coasts.

Gen. Kazushige Ugaki, foreign minister, conveyed the warning in a circular statement to all foreign embassies and legations in Tokyo, which said:

"Japan sincerely desires to avoid possible damage to the lives and property of foreign nationals and advises taking adequate measures along the following lines:

"First, foreign nationals and foreign vessels should evacuate the area south of the Yellow river and east of a line linking Sian, Ichang and Hengyang.

"Second, aerial and landmarks should be placed on foreign property in the aforesaid area and immediate information should be given the Japanese authorities concerning such property."

Runs 700 Miles Inland.

The line indicated would run roughly south-southeast from Sian, capital of Shensi province in China's northwest, to the southeastern coast somewhere in the vicinity of Canton, would cross the great Yangtze river about 200 miles west of Hankow, China's provisional capital, and would run an average of 700 miles inland from the coast. Ichang is a Yangtze port in Hupeh province, Hengyang is in southeastern Hunan.

(It would include, besides north China and central China, areas already conquered by Japan, most of Shensi, Hupeh, Hunan, and Kwangtung provinces and all of such provinces lying east of these as Anhwei, Kiangsi and Eukien.)

The warning set forth that "if the Chinese utilize foreign property in the aforesaid area, Japanese forces will be obliged to attack and will not be responsible for consequences."

McCloud's Gross Estate $664,080

Assistance Department Gets $9,009 In Taxes On York Man's Property

Charles A. McCloud of York, former republican national committeeman for Nebraska, left a gross estate of $664,080 at the time of his death March 21, 1937, a report to State Tax Commissioner W. H. Smith showed today.

In the distribution of taxes on the estate, the state assistance department received $9,009, the federal government $2,566, York county $1,194, Phelps county $60 and Adams county $1.

The state received nothing, however, from the $228,578 estate left by John T. Dorgan, Lincoln, who died April 14, 1937, because Lancaster county's apportionment of $2,014 exceeded the state's share. The federal government received $358.

Bemoans Change.

Smith said approximately $52,000 has accrued to the state assistance department this year from estate taxes and he bemoaned the fact the money goes directly to assistance rather than to the general fund, as previous to a 1937 law.

"If the state taxes went into the general fund," the commissioner asserted, "it would go a long ways in helping to wipe out the current overdraft in that account."

The general fund deficiency is hovering around the $300,000 mark, but warrants are being paid with cash revenue.

Possibility Of Spanish War Truce Looms

Italy and Britain Will Discuss Ways To Bring Their Pact In Effect Before Strife Ends

ROME, June 20— (AP) —The failure of Insurgent Generalissimo Francisco Franco to crush the Spanish government as quickly as Italy desired sent spokesmen of Italy and Britain into a huddle today to discover means of bringing their April 16 accord into effect before the end of the war in Spain.

Foreign Minister Count Galeazzo Ciano and the Earl of Perth, Britain's ambassador, met at noon to consider such possibilities.

The accord, signed at Rome the day before Easter, does not come into effect until Italian troops are withdrawn from Spain, presumably after the end of the war.

As the prolongation of the war has held this up, one suggestion put forward in diplomatic quarters was that Britain might consent to let that part of the accord dealing with general Mediterranean peace begin to function as soon as Italian troops retired from the fighting fronts but not necessarily from Spain.

Initiative Comes From Italy.

The initiative for the new plan appears to come from Italy, which made the April 16 pact in the belief the Spanish government

Stocks Advance $1 To $5

NEW YORK, June 20—(AP) The stock market shot upward today, with the leaders gaining $1 to $5 or more in the first broad upturn in more than a month.

Buyers, taking 250,000 shares in the first hour, the biggest for that period since May 27, set a pace that carried transfers beyond the 1,000,000 mark for the day.

The upward dart of prices hit a wholly-unprepared Wall street. Week-end brokerage letters had been filled with gloom, but with the rush of buyers after the opening gong, sentiment quickly shifted to the cheerful side.

All Share in Gain.

All departments shared in the advance. Prominent on the upturn were U. S. Steel, American Telephone, Chrysler, J. I. Case, International Harvester, American Smelting, Westinghouse and du Pont. Rails and utilities joined in the advance to a lesser extent.

Bonds were strong.

Wheat was ¾ to 1¼ cent a bushel better, with cotton and other commodities also advancing.

Brokers attributed the upturn to belief the stock market had been oversold in discounting recession trends, and to hints of faintly improving business.

More His Size

A toddling, romper-clad tyke, taking in the sights at the zoo in Antelope park Sunday with his parents, had ideas of his own about what he wanted to see.

As they passed the bear's cage he looked up at his father and protested: "Me want to see a mouse."

Blast Causes $8,000 Loss At Swift Home

Oil-Burning Hot Water Heater Explodes; 10 Nurses Are Saved By Hand of Providence

A terrific explosion at the home of Seth S. Swift, 2035 South Fiftieth street, did damage estimated at $8,000 shortly after 8 o'clock Sunday morning and left the basement a tangled mass of wreckage. The blast apparently centered about an oil-burning water heater in the basement.

Firemen said Monday it was impossible to determine definitely the cause of the explosion, due to the fact the oil burner and hot water tanks were completely demolished.

Mr. Swift and his son, Vincil, who were sleeping in bedrooms on the first floor of the house were thrown from their beds but were uninjured.

Through unusual circumstances, 10 Bryan hospital nurses who had lived in rooms in the basement of the house escaped death or serious injury.

On Friday afternoon, six of the nurses had moved from the rooms to different quarters, hospital officials said. None of the other four was in the rooms (which were leased by the hospital) at the time of the explosion.

When Fate Was Kind.

Miss Mercedes Beran had been on night duty and had not returned home at the time of the blast. Miss Fern Crosley, hospital technician, had left for work early, and Miss Elizabeth Korn had gone on an early morning picnic. A fourth nurse had left on vacation Saturday.

A small fire which resulted in the basement was quickly extinguished upon the arrival of firemen. The alarm was turned in by a neighbor at 8:17 a. m.

'Olympian' Plunges Into Flooded Creek In East Montana

Midnight "Flash Flood" Carries Away 180-Foot Trestle, Resulting in Nation's Worst Train Tragedy in Years—23 Bodies Recovered and Many Persons in Hospitals — Water Recedes—Find Body of Dixon Post, Omaha.

MILES CITY, Mont., June 20—(AP)—Seven bodies were recovered today from the wreckage of sleeper "B" of the Milwaukee railroad's "Olympian" bringing to 23 the number taken from the train that plunged into a creek near here and killed nearly 40 persons.

Railroad officials said the seven were all the bodies in the submerged car, but added they believed two or three more were pinned under the wreckage.

Train Wreck Casualty List

MILES CITY, Mont., June 20—(AP)—The list of casualties in the train wreck near Miles City, mont., as issued today by Milwaukee railroad officials and doctors at Holy Rosary hospital, Miles City:

Identified Dead.

John N. Dana, Minneapolis.

Missing.

Mrs. Thomas Ladas, Bellingham, Wash.

(Railroad officials said the following held space in the tourist sleeper that could not be raised from the creek bed last night and in which some bodies could be seen. However, possibly some of those listed either escaped from the car or were not on it when it sank in the stream.)

Dorothy Debeer, Sioux City, Ia.
Neil Clancy, Seattle.

The bodies were brought to Miles City shortly after noon (1 p. m., Lincoln time).

With them were four other bodies which had lain all night on the bank of Custer creek, 26 miles east of here, where the wreck occurred shortly after midnight Sunday morning.

Sixteen bodies were recovered yesterday and last night.

Train porters said "five or six" other persons were swept away.

Eleven bodies recovered yesterday were brought to Miles City mortuaries last night. The body of a woman believed to have been a passenger on the train was recovered from the Yellowstone river near Glendive 50 miles from the scene of the wreck.

When the train plunged into the water the creek was about 20 feet deep from a "flash flood" caused by a cloudburst.

The bridge, weakened by the rushing torrent, gave way when the engine was nearly across the creek. It fell into the churning water and dragged the tender, a mail car, baggage car, two chair cars and three tourist sleepers in after it.

The deep water and silt prevented workers from reaching sleeper "B" until today, because the car—the middle sleeper—was more deeply submerged than the others.

The receding water enabled rescue workers to get into the sleeper today. Plans were made to cut through the steel walls of the car with torches, but the flow of the creek was so reduced they were able to enter through windows.

Crew of 175 at Work.

A crew of 175 men was working at the wreckage.

Of the bodies found in sleeper "B," the first two identified were those of Dixon Post, Omaha, and John N. Dana, Minneapolis.

Mrs. Florence Post of Omaha, mother of Dixon Post, arrived here today to try to find her son, but collapsed a few minutes later and was placed under a physician's care in a hotel. She was not immediately notified of the discovery of his body.

'Blighted Area' Is Loose Term

Mayor Explains Housing Report Referred Only To Specific Cases

When the special housing committee reported that slum conditions existed within certain specified areas last week it did not in any sense mean that such a condition was true of all houses within those areas, Mayor Copeland explained Monday.

"That did not mean that the entire district was blighted," the mayor said. "It meant only that there are some poor residential properties in the districts named."

Mayor Copeland said he had heard no complaints against the report and that no one has approached him asking a reduction in the valuation of property because of the territory in which they live being termed "blighted."

No action was taken on the report by the city council Monday. Members have had no opportunity to study the findings, according to the mayor, and he added that before anything is done the entire report will be gone over thoroughly.

Elm Creek Chamber Asks County Aid In Fighting 'Hoppers

KEARNEY, Neb., June 20—(AP)—Members of the Elmcreek chamber of commerce have appealed to the Buffalo county board of supervisors for additional county aid in combatting grasshoppers. They asked the board to handle distribution of 'hopper poison along roads, in ditches and along banks of streams, while farmers are scattering the poison bait over their fields. The board took no action on the request because the cost would be "prohibitive."

Holt County Starts Blue Grass Harvest

Nearly Thousand Men, Special Machinery, To Gather $100,000 Crop

O'NEILL, Neb., June 20—(AP)—Everybodys' gold mine is what they're calling it—the blue grass seed harvest in Holt county which gets in full swing today. Early reports indicate a $100,000 crop.

Specially designed harvesters or "strippers" drawn by horse, automobile, tractor or truck will do most of the work with crews hired by about 15 seed firms participating. About 1,000 men will be employed for the two-week harvest period, farmers in this vicinity believe. Day and night operations probably will start immediately, since the seed, once ripe, soon sifts to earth and a strong wind or hail storm may cause great damage.

Early estimates place the county harvest total at about 200 cars with the daily "take" of at least one firm as high as 40,000 pounds. Farmers are being paid from $1 to $2 an acre for seed rights.

Import Crop.

Local seed men see this year's crop as extremely important since recent drouth years depleted reserve supplies. Last year's crop got an excellent start, they recalled, but dry weather and weed growth soon ruined it.

The story of Holt county blue grass goes back to post-Indian days when settlers found only wild varieties of grasses. Either horse feed boxes brought in the seed, or someone purposely scattered it, but it soon crowded out wild grasses. Several decades ago a sample was sent to a wholesale seed house, readily accepted, and the harvest has increased steadily since.

A fife and drum corps of Tecumseh furnished martial music. Jay C. Moore, Tecumseh son of a veteran, made a short talk, as did others. There were musical selections and Mrs. S. W. Phillips of Tecumseh recited. Mr. Carman's mind is clear and, to convince his guests of the fact, he recited a number of childhood verses he learned at his mother's knee and told stories of the war. Lunch was served, and the big birthday cake was so arranged that a minature flag went with each helping.

Mr. Carman makes his home with his son, Linn Carman, and wife. He has been on a wheel chair for a number of years and, for the past two years has not been able to get about much. He keeps fully posted on the events of the day and is a good conversationalist.

OCTAGON HOUSE

BY PHOEBE ATWOOD TAYLOR

The Story So Far: Asey Mayo, Cape Cod detective, is investigating the murder of Marina Lorne, whose husband's post office mural has enraged Quanomet. She was killed by a left handed blow from the knife of her sister, Pam Frye. Milling around the Frye Octagon House are: Agreeable Tim Carr, who was married to Marina; Jack Lorne who thought he was her husband; Roddy Strutt, whose plane crashed the night of the murder; Aaron Frye, Pam's father; Peggy Boone, an artist; and persons unknown who smoke Turkish tobacco, burned down the barn, and biffed Asey, Tim, Aaron and two troopers. Missing is a $50,000 lump of ambergris belonging to Pam.

Chapter 34.
ART FOR ART'S SAKE.

It was a perilous trip in the overloaded boat, and the current and Timothy had a vigorous battle all the way. Asey tied up the boat, shepherded the troopers to the car, and proceeded to drive the coupe back to Octagon House.

"Now," he said, as he got out of the car. "I want you to drive these fellers to Hanson, an' then bring your car back, please, an' leave it here for me. I want to see Jack Lorne, an' then I got an errand to do."

Jack was sitting in his studio before a littered table. He was dressed in crumpled green pajamas, and he hadn't yet bothered to shave off his accumulation of beard.

"Have you discovered," Asey asked him without any preamble, "whether or not anything got taken or disturbed here last evening by the person who socked Aaron?"

"Haven't looked," Pack told him with a yawn. "I wouldn't know, anyway. Marina kept everything in order, in the portfolios. I never bother with stuff like that. Say, come see what I've got planned for Senator Hemmingwell's dining room wall. Marina didn't like my first sketch, but I did another last night." He held out a sketch, and Asey looked at it.

"Mmmm," Asey said. "What's that in the corner, the fatted calf, or the Senator himself?"

Lorne snatched the drawing from his hand and started off on a shrill tirade.

Asey listened appreciatively as he wandered around the studio, peeking into portfolios and lifting the lids from the countless cardboard boxes that served as files.

Probably the boy thought that this display was temperament. Dr. Cummings would diagnose it as what happened when a man didn't get enough sleep and plenty of good, hearty food—including a good, hot breakfast. Personally, Asey thought the outburst was temper. Just pettish, ornery bad temper, with a little childish tantrum thrown in.

Asey crossed over to the fireplace and looked into it reflectively, and then he resumed his steady pacing around the room. There was not, he thought, much sense in telling Jack Lorne.

Lorne would find out soon enough that whoever had biffed Aaron Frye had also removed the contents of all those portfolios and boxes. Removed them, and neatly burned them up.

Original Ideas.

"That's art!" Jack wound up, thumping the table with his fist. "That's art!"

"Just so," Asey said soothingly. "Just so. I don't doubt it a bit. Tell me did your wife help you a lot?"

"Well, she helped," Lorne admitted grudgingly. "Not a lot, but she used to have some ideas."

"She never went in seriously for drawing or painting did she?" Asey asked.

Jack laughed. "Oh no. Of course, she did have a certain amount of talent, but she never did anything about it. Never wanted anyone to know about it, either. Always hid away by herself when she worked."

"I see," Asey said. "She helped in your early plans with rough sketches. Always dif'rent. I s'pose all her ideas was original?"

"But of course they were!"

So Jack Lorne didn't know that Marina had swiped Tim Carr's sketches. And if she had swiped Tim's, she might well have swiped others.

Any fool should have been able to guess what Marina had been up to. Of course, Jack Lorne had always trusted Marina. Why should he have suspected that her ideas were not always original? A brighter person would have caught on, but Lorne had admitted that he was not bright. And he certainly was not!

"Where are your sketches of the mural?" Asey asked suddenly. "Got 'em here?"

Lorne waved a hand toward the corner. "In the portfolios there," he said. "But why not go see the mural itself?"

"Today is Sunday," Asey pointed out. "The post office is closed. Whose idea was it to stick in the natives?"

"Marina's," Jack said. "It was fun. She knew 'em all so well. Some of them are sore, but that doesn't matter. They'll get over it."

A Question of Caraway Seeds.

"Can you think of any one person in town who was more annoyed about the mural than any other person?"

Jack laughed. "Oh, Pam was hopping. So was Aaron. And Peg, and Roddy and Nettie—and the minister, and the plumber, and—say, I wish he'd get over here and fix that tank! They were all of them sore. Everyone in it. Some of them threatened to beat me up!"

"It's just this lack of appreciation for true art," Asey said blandly. "You shouldn't worry."

Timothy Carr met him as he strode back to the Frye's. "The car's ready for you."

"Good," Asey said. "If anyone wants me, I'll be over in the Pochet hospital—"

"What's the matter with you, or are you just visiting a sick friend?"

"Visitin'," Asey said. "So long."

Timothy shook his head as he watched the little car scud down the drive.

"Did your wife help you a lot?" asked Asey.

"Don't look so unhappy," Pam said, coming up behind him. "Asey leads a charmed life, and he probably will bring the car back safely. He always does. Did he tell you all about the great ambergris loss?"

"What are ambergris?" Tim asked. "And tell me, do you like steak and kidney pie?"

"No. Didn't he tell—"

"How about caraway seeds?"

"They make me sick," Pam said. "But what's that got to do with—"

"I never," Tim said, "could think of marrying a woman with a passion for caraway seeds, and steak and kidney pie. Singly or together. It's one of those vital points I like to get settled at the start."

"Oh, you do, do you?" Pam said.

She hated herself for turning red, and not being able to frame a proper retort, with just the proper amount of gay flippancy in it. The sort of easy and successful retort Marina could always make, to Pam's deep envy.

"Oh, you do, do you?" she said again, mentally cursing her inability to say anything else. Compared with what Marina would have said, she sounded like a coy housemaid. Looked like one, too, Pam thought, suddenly conscious of her kitchen apron. And her hands. Dishpan hands of the first water.

Some Extraordinary Ideas About America

Informative News Replacing Sensations

By DE WITT MACKENZIE.

(Associated Press Foreign Affairs Writer).

NEW YORK, June 20—They do say it's an ill wind that doesn't cool somebody's brow, and by that token we find our United States profiting in a strange and indirect way from the international chaos.

Our English cousins are for the first time making a serious attempt to get acquainted with the United States through the medium of the British press. American news, calculated to be informative and constructive, is taking the place in considerable degree of the sensationalism upon which the average Briton has built a distorted picture of this country and its people.

This change of heart is not due to a sudden surge of affection. America is regared more or less as the arbiter of the economic and political fate of a very distressed world.

England is looking to her for leads, particularly in the Far East. Hence the growing thirst for real news.

Know Little About U. S.

Britain as a whole has some extraordinary ideas about America, due to the fact that the great majority of Englishmen know very little about the United States.

Up until about five years ago most English newspapers didn't pay much attention to American news, excepting for sports and sensations. The publishers said their readers weren't interested in it.

The volume of English news sent to this country at that time was many times that of the news carried the other way. The volume coming to America is still much larger, but the British coverage has become more comprehensive than it was.

The great British public based its ideas about America and her people mainly on stories about gunmen, violations of the prohibition law hijackers, lynchings and Hollywood scandals.

Capone Did Go to Prison.

I have before me a memorandum made in London eight years ago, recording that a great London daily published a lengthy story about "Scarface Al Capone, the millionaire, gunman, gangster and king of the Chicago underworld." The story said:

"A man with Scarface's power need never go to jail unless he wants to."

England knows now that Scarface did go to prison, whether he wanted to or not. Still, many people over there believe that the average Yankee totes a gun, that our police are crooked and our courts corrupt.

I recall chatting one day with an affable London police sergeant who remarked:

"You couldn't bribe a judge over here, could you?"

Discreet Sergeant.

He was too discreet to be more specific, but the inflection of his voice and his suggestive smile left nothing to the imagination.

England even now knows well only about four datelines in the whole United States. Those are New York, Washington, Chicago and Hollywood. News from other places than these four generally is put under a New York dateline, with the statement that a message from such and such a city says so and so.

The geography of America means nothing in Britain. Texas may be on the Great Lakes, for all the Englishman knows. Tell him that it is as far from New York to Hollywood as it is from Liverpool to New York, and he will stare at you in amazement and doubt.

More Yankee bombast! Because a healthy man can hop from coast to coast in England in three jumps, the people can't even imagine a country as big as America.

It sounds like a tall story, but many folk in the British isles think that wild Indians still roam the plains near Chicago. They believe two-gun bad-men shoot their way through the woolly west.

Bryan To Study Request He File

Issues Formal Statement On Suggestion He Run As Independent

Charles W. Bryan, former governor and mayor, stated Monday that he would give careful consideration to suggestions by backers that he run as an independent candidate for governor. Just recently, old age pension sponsors appealed to Mr. Bryan to run as an independent candidate.

In a formal statement, Bryan said:

"Owing to considerable apprehension on the part of my friends as to the actual condition of my health, I am happy to say that I have fully recovered from the effects of an ailment known as the shingles that I was annoyed with during the latter part of the winter and early spring.

Feels Physically Fit.

"From a recent thorough examination made by physicians I was pronounced as near in perfect physical condition and good health as any person might want to be, of course, exclusive of wear and tear by age. I feel that I will be able to take part in the wheat harvest soon to commence on my three farms.

"I sincerely appreciate the confidence in me expressed, and the honor implied, by the state organization officials representing the old age pension movement in Nebraska by petitioning me to file as a candidate for governor on the independent ticket and I will give their request the careful consideration to which it is entitled."

Plane Crashes Over Week-End Kill Eleven

Milwaukee Man Sees Brother Plunge To Death In Home-Made Plane

(By International News Service.)

A series of plane crashes at widely scattered points in the nation over the week-end left 11 persons dead today.

Four killed when a plane crashed near Louin, Miss., Sunday were identified as Jack G. Forshner, P. S. Stubblefield, John D. Roe and R. D. Portwood, all of Greenwood.

At Asheville, N. C., Lieut. S. V. Stephenson, U. S. army flier from Chanute Field, Ill., and Dr. David M. Buck, jr., were killed when their plane went into a tailspin and crashed in a pasture. Leo Rinke, 26, and Kenneth Kullman, 21, died near Detroit when their ship attempted a forced landing because of motor trouble.

Brother Sees Fatal Crash.

At San Mateo, Cal., a naval reserve plane plunged into the bay carrying Lieut. William M. Holenbeck, jr., of Georgia, to death. At Milwaukee, Oscar Gallatin, 24, was instantly killed when his home-made plane crashed on a highway. A brother, Harold, flying another ship overhead, watched him die.

At Lake Geneva, Wis., Saturday, Mrs. Jeannette Peterken, 56, wife of a Chicago millionaire, was drowned when she was trapped in the cabin of a plane which her son piloted when it plunged into a lake.

Western Nebraska Spud Growers Take Steps To Halt Damage By Insects

SCOTTSBLUFF, Neb., June 20—(AP)—Western Nebraska panhandle potato growers took steps today to check what agricultural experts termed one of the worst early potato infestations by the pysllid insect ever known here.

The insect was found in each of seven fields inspected Saturday by T. H. Hankins, Nebraska agricultural college potato specialist, and C. W. Nibler, Scotts Bluff county agent. Both expressed fear the insects may attack the late crop to which nearly 20,000 acres in Scotts Bluff county alone are devoted. Hankins urged immediate spraying, pointing out the pysllid is believed to inject virus into the potato vines, almost destroying the yield and limiting production to small nobby tubers.

Passenger Describes How He Helped Save 24 In Train Wreck

EDITOR'S NOTE: How it feels to be caught in a train car under water is described here by F. Woltz, of Winnebago, Minn., who helped 24 persons to safety from Pullman F at the Milwaukee railroad disaster.)

BY F. WOLTZ.

Written for the Associated Press.)

MILES CITY, Mont., June 20—(AP)—I was sound asleep when suddenly I received an awful crack on my head. Glass splintered over my face and over the covers and water was gushing in the window above my berth.

My first thought was that the train had overturned into a ditch. I got up, dazed and I dressed and crawled out the window to find out the trouble. Two men followed me and water came up to the sill of the window.

Four cars were standing up vertical to the track so we stepped from my window onto the side of a car next to us. We pulled the people in the car from my window up to the top of the sleeper. A colored porter was tops in efficiency during the rescue work.

I think everyone in the car was asleep when the impact came. The current in the stream was awful and we dared not see how deep the creek was at that time for fear we might be taken by the stream. One end of the car next to us was in water and we hollered to the people in the car that it was not sinking and to stay there as they would be safe.

It was just a few minutes after midnight and it was one of the blackest nights I've ever seen. We carried a lot of women and children from the cars to the track One fellow had a flashlight and he focused down on the banks of the stream and saw a girl about eight years old sitting in the silt and patting her hands on the water. We rushed down and carried her to the track.

Everyone was quite calm. There was no hysteria at all. We tossed a berth hammock to one lady in the water and pulled her out to the tracks. Someone found a ladder and we put it from the chair car to the tender and people walked over the rungs.

We saw a lot of bodies around but we didn't pull any on the track as we wanted to save all the persons we could. It was an awful night and I hope that I never experience anything like that again.

TAKE YOUR TROUBLES TO MINERVA

LETTER FROM NELL

Three cheers! A letter from Nell, today—I wish I had the space to use it all at the same reading, but I'm afraid I shall have to divide it. However, a letter from Nell is always worth two days reading, so here goes for the first installment.

Dear Minerva: This discussion of maids and particularly the letters from Rebellious and Lona interests me. I have been a maid and I have been an employer of maids so I understand something of both sides of this discussion.

Naturally a maid has grievances; so does her employer. But so, also, does any other line of work—any other line of anything.

Lona accuses Rebellious of being snobbish. She isn't. She just doesn't happen to be born the kind of girl who can be happy in the status of maid. There a lot of difference between snobbery and rebellion. But Lona is a snob. She is because she refused utterly to understand—and she is quite capable of understanding if she would.

The difficulty between employers and maids is not one of work and hours fundamentally—though it seems that on the surface. It goes deeper, it has to do with something more inherent than a distate for the work. It is exactly the same sort of feeling that makes a "white collar" man shrink from the thought of ever being forced to dig ditches. Not, you understand, that they could not dig ditches or that they consider the work beneath them but only that most ditch diggers—(get ready Minerva reader!)—actually are their mental inferiors.

SERIES RECALLED

Some years ago, in a famous national magazine, there ran a series of articles by a man who drove a truck for a living complaining of the way life was in general. I don't know why the magazine accepted those articles unless the genuine ability of the man to handle words together with his quite evident inability to reason with them was novel enough to merit print. But anyhow, among this man's complaint I remember particularly this:

"The woman said to my wife, 'Your husband seems intelligent; why is he driving a truck then?'"

And following that a general tirade against humanity that they couldn't see that truck driving is a very honest occupation. Well, it is, of course. But what the man couldn't see was that other people considered him mentally capable of holding a better job; he had even been offered better jobs which he refused because driving a truck was his idea of a good job; and he couldn't see the difference between mediocrity and something a bit better. It was all one to him.

Now Lona, if you are honest with yourself—and us—you will admit that, having a choice of jobs, you wouldn't want to be a maid. Few women would. Why? Because it is a job requiring no special equipment (except perhaps purely physical) and it has practically no future at all. Once a maid always a maid—until you get out and do something else. As you begin so you remain—with very little advancement in a maid capacity. Like digging ditches almost anyone with enough ordinary health can do it.

Not so with other forms of earning a livelihood. Practically any other line of work yields promise of some future.

The feeling between maids and employers—whether you like to admit it or not—is normally one of some antagonism. Knowing the kind of girls who sometimes are maids, knowing a maid's general inability to be anything else naturally an employer feels superior. Maybe she isn't but she holds the best position just the same.

Voters In Maine March To Polls

PORTLAND, Me., June 20—(AP)—Maine's electorate chose in a biennial primary election today party designates for offices at stake in the Sept. 12 general election.

Leaders of both major parties agreed voting probably would be lighter than the 1936 primary total of 120,000, despite a wordy and often bitter campaign between Gov. Lewis O. Barrows and State Senator Roy L. Fernald of Winterport for the republican gubernatorial nomination.

Former Gov. Louis J. Brann, seeking a third term, was unopposed for the democratic gubernatorial nomination. Three republican U. S. representatives sought renomination, one unopposed, and in one of the three districts there was a contest for democratic house nomination.

4 Go To Guillotine

BERLIN, June 20—(AP)—Pyoetzensee prison's guillotine claimed four lives at dawn today.

Liselotte Herman, 28, and three male companions, Josef Steidle, Stefan Lovacz and Arthur Goeritz, were beheaded. They were convicted of high treason, allegedly because of communist activities.

Six have been beheaded within the last five days.

Painless Childbirth Under Hypnotic Spell Reported By Mother

LOS ANGELES, June 20—(AP)—Painless childbirth, under her husband's hypnotic spell, was reported today by Mrs. Ethel Pardie Gaynor, 45, mother of six children.

Mrs. Gaynor said "it seemed as if I dozed off for a moment" while her latest, an eight-pound daughter, was born yesterday.

Two attending physicians certified she apparently suffered no pain, although no anaesthetic was used.

Dr. Leo Gaynor, psycho-therapist, explained he started three weeks ago suggesting to his wife's conscious mind that birth would be painless.

Mrs. Gaynor said she suffered pain during the birth of five children by a former marriage.

Burlington Officials Say Sudden Cloudburst Extremely Treacherous

Burlington officials in Lincoln said Monday in commenting on the tragic wreck of the Olympian in Montana, that a sudden local cloudburst is about as treacherous a factor as there is in railroading.

"With a general storm, reports come in well and trains can be held until the tracks and bridges are inspected," it was explained. "But with the sudden local downpours, there is always the hazard that reports will not get in soon enough to halt all trains."

One of the assigned duties of the station agents and section foremen, located everywhere along the lines, is to report any rain, even though it is just a shower that wakes them up in the middle of the night. The danger of an otherwise dry run encountering a canyon at sudden flood is always present, and not always avoidable.

County Equalization Board In Survey

The county board of equalization will start out Tuesday on its summer's trek into the country looking over property on which owners have complained that the assessment is too high. Wednesday they will look over the city property.

With only 21 city complaints and 9 county, the board is having an easier job than usual. Of interest among the complaints are those of the Eppley Hotels company, for hearing on both personal and property tax, of the Capital Building company for reduction on the Lincoln Theater building, an of L. L. Coryell and Sons building companies for reduction of real property taxes on the Premier and Chancellor apartments at Eighteenh and J streets, and reduction of the personal property taxes on the Ambassador and the President.

Always In Order

GRANGE MASTER LOUIS J. TABER comes forward with a reminder which always is in order. Too many people, he says, are engaged in selling America short. Those who do not like the government at Washington particularly are active in that enterprise at this time. And some of those who believe it strengthens the position of the New Deal to paint a gloomy and forbidding situation are guilty.

Any country which has the bulk of insurance which is in force in the world cannot afford to become too pessimistic.

Any country, which despite the troubles, still has the best balanced agriculture in the world, should not became panicky.

Any country which has gone through as severe a readjustment as the United States without permanent dislocation has a great deal to be thankful for.

The chances are good that production on the farm and in industry will show a splendid improvement before the close of 1938. In any event moaning will not improve public psychology, and the state of people's minds has a lot to do with business.

By Air And Water

JAPAN'S greatest success against China has come in those zones where attacks could be launched with the combination of warship, airplane, and land forces. That was the strategy called upon in the drive up the Yangtze river.

As a major factor, the Chinese claim that a swift bombing squadron of planes had succeeded in sinking four Japanese warships will furnish tonic for the spirits of a hard-pressed people but will have no determining influence in the new theater of action to which Japan has been obliged to return since the Yellow river floods halted her armies. And it appears that the Yangtze shortly will become a flooded valley, which could result in nothing more than a stalemate during the summer months.

But China has been so pitifully unprepared in the air, the successful attack on the warships would seem to furnish evidence this weakness is being overcome. Man to man the land troops of Japan have not added any glory to their record. They have been outfought by the Chinese whenever the superior equipment could be offset by physical strength and by courage. If the temporary lull furnishes China with an opportunity to strengthen her air forces the resumption of fighting next fall will furnish Japan another surprise.

For A Degree

THE case of "Whizzer" White will attract more than casual attention. Whenever he wanted to sign his name to the line to play professional football with a Pittsburgh team, he was certain of being $15,000 richer. He also had a Rhodes scholarship, entitling him to three years of study in England with all expenses paid. While the story did not disclose definitely what his decision is, the assumption is that White will continue his studies.

It was a tough spot for a young man of his years to pick between continued study and the opportunity to make a nice wad of dough. There is no assurance that the added opportunity for research will increase the young football player's earning ability but he has taken a sensible and a sane view of it nevertheless. There is no future ahead of a young chap in professional football, especially if he sticks with it for any length of time.

Bigger Business At Hand

CANDIDATES early in the field in Nebraska bring back the story that they find it difficult to stir up any interest. There is a good reason. No harvest has been watched by all classes of people with greater interest than the one shortly to get under way.

It may be Nebraska has her sights aimed too high. But the last four days have changed the appearance of wheat fields greatly. In those sections where rust damage, either heavy or light, already had taken place, farmers still are anticipating a fairly normal crop. And there are thousnds of acres of wheat in the state apparently untouched by rust where yields will run high. All other small grains hold exceptional promise. Under the circumstances the candidates need not be surprised if the voters have other business to occupy them.

Violent Deaths In Nebraska

THE week-end produced more than its normal quota of violent deaths in Nebraska. In all 10 people died. Two were killed by trains, one suffered a broken neck in diving while swimming, three others drowned, and five were claimed in automobile accidents.

It went to make up a grisly Sabbath.

There's not very much which can be done about it, except by people themselves. Into every accidental death of this nature a certain amount of recklessness on the part of someone, not always necessarily the victim, enters. After it happens, it is so easy to see how it could have been avoided. The death toll will show a startling decline when it becomes possible to discover how it can be avoided before it happens.

WITHOUT A HOME

THE story of the renewed activity in Germany and Austria, upon orders by Hitler, revealing renewed efforts to terrorize Jewish populations emphasizes the fact there is precious little soil in continental Europe where this has not taken place in some form.

It began in Russia.

It overran in Poland, where Russian atrocities and brutalities were re-enacted with a savage furor. Since then it has swept into other countries so that with the exception of the north Scandinavian peoples, France, and some of the tiny nations of Europe, those of Jewish blood can expect nothing but cruelty. There seems to be no answer in Europe to a racial prosecution whose only counterpart in European history is found in the religious prosecution of the Crusades.

The Jew is without a home. The effort to establish an asylum in Palestine is ridiculous under the circumstances. In the first place it is geographically so small that the idea it would accommodate millions of refugees is ridiculous. It is without natural resources. And the story of Palestine, where it was hoped that the Jew might reestablish himself, and live in peace and contentment under conditions where he would be spared further punishment, has been exploded.

It is a situation which the world cannot continue to ignore. The Jewish people have made outstanding contributions to civilization. Nothing that occupies the attention of the human race could reflect the progress which it does except for their efforts. In science, in all of the branches of culture, as well as in business and industry the Jew has made measurable contributions. All of this is forgotten in the rage of the hour. That he enriched music, literature, all of the arts, counts for nothing now. That he maintained high standards of citizenship and deep national loyalty means nothing to his persecutors. He is in their eyes an outcast and an undesirable, to be stripped of his rights, of his property, and not infrequently to be deprived of his life.

The stories which come from both Germany and Austria, stories written by credited correspondents, stories carried by credited news agencies, establish clearly that the German and Austrian people as a mass do not approve of the course adopted by Hitler and the inner circle of Nazi leaders. But they are powerless, apparently, to interfere. They are in fear of their own lives.

And that is a sad state of affairs—as despicable in its wanton cruelty, as intolerable in its intolerance and as vicious in its cruelty as any development which has taken place in modern history. It is several thousand miles away and yet that which is taking place can be visualized without effort. Here is a whole race of people in fear and trembling. Here are people who had lived in neighborly fashion singled out for shocking treatment. Among them are hundreds and thousands of aged men and women, who have lived quietly and peacefully all their lives, yet who in the sunset of their lives are subjected to such brutality that the toll of human life cannot be anything but heavy.

And why? In these European countries, under the rule of certain men, reason has fled. In its place has come a crop of hatred that is neither understandable nor human. That which is being done today will take new form tomorow when the needs and necessities suggest different action. In this country where racial, class and religious distinction are supposed not to exist, and where as a matter of fact they have been wiped out more successfully than any place else, there can be nothing but horror and repugnance toward the developments now taking place.

A Miracle Of Light

PICTURE, if you can, an object no larger than a wooden match broken in two. A new vapor lamp, no larger than that, has been developed. It gives off a light more than 4,000 degrees hotter than the sun's surface. One handful of such lamps would light all the airports in the United States.

The new lamp was developed first in Eindhoven, Holland but is undergoing further improvement at Stanford university. Two have already been installed, however, at the Amsterdam airport. The secret of the lamp's incredible brilliance is that mercury vapor forms inside the tiny tube at a pressure more than a thousand times that of the atmosphere. Since no material known to man could stand the temperature which the lamp generates, it is cooled by an outer tube of water. It is so bright that when it is turned on, an ordinary 200-watt electric light in the same room casts only a dark shadow on the wall.

It invokes awe to contemplate a man-made instrument of less than the size of a match with a capacity to give off enounghlight to illuminate an area a mile square. While the wonders of nature are infinite the amazing results of man's ingenuity likewise tax one's comprehension. The new lamp suggests possibilities of literally turning night into day.

Nebraska City's Experiment

THE full significance of an innovation of Nebraska City's tax program can be gauged better a year from now. At a meeting last Friday the Nebraska City commission took steps to abolish a graduated scale of occupation taxes on business which had been in effect virtually since the founding of the community, one of the oldest in the state.

As a result business institutions, which have contributed something like $3,000 annually to the municipality's coffers, will be relieved of the task. At the same time the commission cast about to discover some source of revenue to offset the loss. Tentatively it was agreed to levy an income tax upon the gross income of the Central Power company, which would raise $1,650 a year, and leave the street fund to which all of the occupation taxes have gone in the past approximately $1,400 short.

In turn, unless the tax can be absorbed without increasing the electric light rates, the company will pass it on to the consumer. And that is a short, brief, unpleasant fact about taxes, no matter how much ingenuity is called into play to devise new methods of taxation. In the end they fall upon the shoulders of the consuming public.

SLEEPING HABITS OF TWINS ARE STUDIED BY PHYSICIANS

As the readers of this column know, I always have been very much interested in twins. They present a perfect natural biological experiment. They both start out with the same heredity and at the same moment, and the amount of influence which heredity has on our lives can easily be measured by studying them.

This point of view appears to impress biologists a great deal during the present century and studies of twins are increasing. I find from Germany the report on a research on the sleeping habits of twins.

Is it possible to observe hereditary traits manifested while consciousness is more or less obliterated by sleep? A study of this problem might shed light on certain specially conditioned functions of the mind manifested during consciousness.

There is a camp for twins on the Baltic coast, and here 26 pairs of female twins, ranging from 6 to 14 years were observed. The doctors who made the study distinguished two kinds of sleep—cortical sleep and axial sleep. In cortical sleep the consciousness is completely lost and dreams are absent, but the muscles of the body perform regular movements of turning over and getting into different positions. In axial sleep the muscles are quiet but the mind is only partly unconscious, resulting in moments of wakefulness and semi-wakefulness and in dreams. Everybody must have experienced both types. In individuals, however, one type or the other is liable to predominate.

In children sleep-walking, gnashing the teeth and bed-wetting are evidence of predominant cerebral sleep.

Movements Are Hereditary

The study of the sleep of twins, making these observations, is astonishingly confirmatory of the fact that most of our habits and movements are hereditary and beyond our control. Twins tend to go to sleep within the same period of time and to wake up almost at the same moment, even though they do not sleep in the same bed or even in the same room. They exhibit the same habits during sleep. Both of them tend to belong to the cerebral or the axial type of sleepers; both of them tend to be teeth gnashers, somnambulists or bed-wetters. Some people wake suddenly with a start, others gradually, and twins are likely to have the same habits.

To read these reports is quite uncanny and makes one feel rather fatalistic.

Other recent studies in twins have concerned the appearance of allergy in twins. It is well known that allergy, such as hay fever and similar conditions, are hereditary. Hay fever occurs in from 7 to 10 per cent of the population. In hay fever families the percentage may be as high as 50 per cent but in twins this percentage rises. other twin will have it in from other twin will have it in form 80 to 100 per cent of cases. This also is true of migraine or sick headache. In many twins who have asthma due to food, they are both allergic to the same food.

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

The Living Jewel

The jewels oft by beauty worn
In lowly humbleness were born.
—Old Mother Nature.

There are jewels and jewels. What we usually think of when jewels are mentioned are dead things despite what seem like living fires in some of them and the beauty in all of them. But there are living jewels—jewels that are truly alive; most of these come from very humble beginnings.

"I don't like worms—ugh!" exclaimed Sue. She had paused by a milkweed plant and her nose was turned up in an expression of disgust.

"That isn't a worm; it is a caterpillar and caterpillars are not worms," declared Tommy.

"I don't care if it is. It is horrid anyway," retorted Sue. "It makes me crawl," she added.

"Don't be silly," protested Tommy. "Some caterpillars are not pretty, but some are. That big greenish-yellow one with black stripes may not be exactly handsome but his appearance is sort of striking."

"I don't like his looks," declared Sue.

"Neither do the birds," replied Tommy. "Perhaps that is why old Mother Nature dressed him up that way. I guess the birds don't like the taste of him either, for birds that eat other caterpillars, even the hairy ones, won't touch the milkweed caterpillar."

"Is that the name of this one?" Sammy wanted to know.

Tommy nodded. "That's what folks call it," said he. "You see, it lives on the leaves of milkweed plants. I've never seen it eat anything else."

"Will it turn into a butterfly or a moth?" Sue asked.

"A butterfly," was the prompt reply. "It will be a Monarch Butterfly and"—

"What kind of a butterfly is a Monarch?" interrupted Sammy.

"There is one now!" exclaimed Tommy as a large butterfly alighted on a milkweed plant. The wings were a brownish or coppery red bordered with black, and the veins were black. A double row of white spots was set in the black borders, and the tips of the upper wings for a short distance back were black, and in this three-side patch were a few white and pale orange spots.

"Don't tell me that that horrid caterpillar will ever be such a handsome creature as that!" cried Sue.

"It sure will, Sue," replied Tommy. "What is more, it won't wait to turn into a butterfly to become beautiful, a living jewel."

Of course, right away both Sue and Sammy wanted to know what he meant by that. "Well,"

"There is one now!" exclaimed Tommy said he, "you know there are four wholly different stages in a butterfly's life. First it is an egg."

"And then it is a caterpillar. Ugh!" said Sue.

"And then it is a something or other in a cocoon," said Sammy.

Tommy grinned as he shook his head. Then he explained. "Not in a cocoon, Sammy. It is moths, not butterflies, that come out of cocoons. Moth caterpillars spin cocoons of silk and in them become pupa, the something or other you just mentioned, Sammy. The pupa of a butterfly gets along without a cocoon and is called a chrysalis. It changes to a butterfly and that is the fourth stage."

Suddenly Sue fairly squealed with delight. "Oh, Tommy, see what I've found! It's a piece of jewelry, an ear-drop, only of course it isn't! What is it really Tommy?" She held out a leaf. From midway of the underside was suspended what did indeed resemble a jeweled eardrop or small pendant. It was green, the upper part darker, shading to a lighter green below. It looked as if it might have been carved from a piece of lovely jade. Around the upper part was a band of shining gold and there were a few flecks of gold scattered on the lower part. The whole thing was exquisite.

"The living jewel I mentioned," said Tommy. "It is the chrysallis of the Monarch Butterfly. I am so glad you found it, Sue. And that was once a caterpillar just like that one you call horrid."

JUST FOLKS

By Edgar A. Guest

THE COMMON HAZARDS.

There are the common hazards which all of us must meet:
The bitter cold of winter, with the driving rain and sleet;

The everlasting hunger and the oft returning thirst!
These are the needs that face us—the best of us and worst.

And there is pain to suffer. Our own we may endure.
But there's the pain of loved ones we lack the means to cure.

These things all men must plan for: hunger and thirst and pain,
And fire against the winter and shelter from the rain.

CALLING ALL DOGS!

By Albert Payson Terhune

The Fourth of July is almost at hand. In spite of the "safe and sane" laws in some states, most of our country will continue to exercise its ancient rights to acquire tetanus and burns and possible blindness, with a touch of arson thrown in for good measure. Which is no business of mine. But how about the Fourth of July dogs?

Millions of dogs, everywhere, are driven to paroxysms of terror, on July Fourth, by the wholesale explosion of fireworks. They feel, probably, as do the human residents of a city which is ripped to pieces by a giant earthquake. Too many boys still consider it a grand joke to tie a pack of cannon firecrackers to a dog's tail. It is a hideously cruel form of "fun." And it ought to land its perpetrators in jail.

On the night before the Fourth, put your nervous dogs in some quiet place where they won't be as frightened or excited by the continuous explosions as if they were left loose. Keep them there, till the orgy of noise is ended. Above all, don't subject them to a full blast of the din. Their aversion of it is not a sign of cowardice, any more than is your own flinching from the lightning bolt which shatters the tree under which you are standing.

Give your dog a July Fourth square deal.

PARAGRAPHS

By Robert Quillen

Nature requires some activity. In low lands, where rich soil provides an easy living, she provides malaria for exercise.

The hard part of solving the world's problems is to get self-interest, religion, justice and decency on the same side.

Glorious war still has its rules. Rule 1: You kill some of our women and children; then we'll kill some of yours.

You hear southern accent only in the north. In the south it isn't an accent but an instinct.

Reasons for the "recession" are two: (1) Nobody knows what to do, and (2) other big shots wouldn't let him do it, anyway.

People are always surprised when treated rough. They don't think the other fellow would hit back.

Going too far makes people disagreeable. Think how popular a lawn grass would be if it would grow so high and quit.

Anybody who works for you has a right to tell you how good he is; but he can't use your money to pay an expert to do it unless he is a government official.

Training is the important thing. Weeds make a very satisfactory lawn if they are kept trimmed.

Discovery of malaria's antiquity confuses scientists. They can't tell whether ancient temples were shaken down by earthquakes or chills.

New rules of sportsmanship: Foul your man at the start. That costs you the round, but cripples him enough to make the rest of the fight easy.

Guest room: The one you could use for guests if it wasn't occupied by relatives.

Modern version: "I only regret that I have but one anti-aircraft gun to give for my country."

Dictators are smart. When they planned to trick and persuade South America, they didn't let congressmen shout it from the housetops.

Free land: One where a country lawyer, by getting elected to the senate, automatically becomes an authority on international affairs.

Correct this sentence: "We sell arms to Japan and none to Spain," said the official, "because we love freedom and underdogs."

People's Forum

(Forum communications to The Lincoln Star should be limited to 500 words. The letters to this department represent the individual views of the writers and may or may not express the views of this newspaper.)

THE GOOGOL

LINCOLN, NEB.

To the editor of The Lincoln Star: Rather slovenly enunciation enabled the nephew of Dr. Edward Kasner to give that charming name "googol," to the number one followed by one hundred zeros. Doubtless when the question was put to him he visualized that astounding number and muttered to himself, "Good golly."

It is really too bad that Einstein limits the scientists to the number one followed by 79 zeros, that being, as you say, "the limit of matter." Still it isnt the limit of numbers set by some of the lesser mathematicians, for I note in a little book by Robert Carmichael of the University of Illinois asking his pupils to "show that factorial 1,000 ends with 249 zeros, for to produce it one must multiply together all the integers from 1 to 1,000. Even little factoral 7 equals 840 and factorial 10 equals 604,800. But this does not attempt to set the limit of matter.

That 1 followed by 79 zeros "intrigues" me—if I may be permitted that somewhat overworked verb. For it can be divided by the prime number 317 and the last remainder will be 1. In other words, the reciprocal of 317 consists of the decimal point, two zeros and 77 significant digits. And if we discard the decimal point and divide this reciprocal twice by 3, the new number will in turn yield a reciprocal of 79 places—the decimal point, 75 zeros and 2,853 for significant digits.

CHARLES Q. DE FRANCE.

SMALL PERCENTAGE

Lincoln, Neb.

To the editor of The Lincoln Star: In a recent editorial appearing in The Star calling attention to the Mormon church in its efforts to take its people off the dole and charity system, the writer is generous in his praise of the Mormons and their leader, Heber J. Grant, but draws an erroneous comparison.

He is not the first editor to make this mistake and on behalf of the Mormon people I feel called upon to set it right.

The mistake lies in the inference that Utah is, as far as population is concerned, a Mormon state. If the writer would delve into this matter a little further, he would find that Mormons comprise scarcely fifty per cent of the population of Utah, and going a little further, he would discover that of this group of Mormons, as compared to the greater aggregate of non-Mormons, but a very small percentage is receiving government aid. Perhaps the smallest percentage of any group in the states.

Together with the writer I laud all those—whoever they are or wherever they be—who are making a praiseworthy attempt to sustain themselves by individual effort.

The Austrian grab has some of the aspects of banditry on a grand scale. Hitler took over the country, including the stock of gold in the state bank, but he did not take over the financial obligations of that country. This leaves the seizure of the gold unexplained, but that is an easy one. Subdivisions do not have gold.

HOWELLS JOURNAL:
Governor Cochran is in the political arena for reelection. His past record is a promise of what his future course will be. During his four years at the head of the state government he has given whole-heartedly his time, his ability and his energy to forwarding the interests of the state, and kept faith with the people. Under his leadership Nebraska has not adopted any new taxes as it has not been found necessary and, in fact, he frowns upon every suggestion for new revenue-producing measures. It is largely due to his decided stand on this matter that Nebraska stands out as the "white spot" in the nation.

COLFAX COUNTY CALL, SCHUYLER:
It's a funny thing about gossip. The theory is that if one doesn't indulge in it he or she is respected, beloved and has more than an ordinary quiver full of friends. Maybe that works in the long course of a life-time, but in shorter spans of time I really believe there is no bond so instantaneous as that of gossip. If you want to drop the veil of reserve and pass on a little information to your neighbor on the left about the neighbor on the right. If the morsel isn't too utterly cruel or ridiculous you'll be received immediately as a kindred soul. If by any remote chance you are rebuffed instead of feeling respect for a soul superior to gossip you bitterly resent the implication that you yourself have been merely "backfencing." It's a rare case, though that turns out so. In forty-nine out of fifty cases it's gentle enthusiasm you'll be getting my dear.

NEBRASKA CITY NEWS-PRESS:
When you write Secretary Wallace a complaint be sure your hands are clean.

Recently the secretary received a letter from Philadelphia which was signed "Consumers League." It asked him not to reduce sugar quotas from their current figures.

Mr. Wallace had the letter investigated and discovered it came from a large sugar brokerage house; that there is no branch of the Consumers League in Philadelphia.

What looked like a scandal turned out to be the work of an employe of the sugar brokerage house who had been playing the sugar market against company rules. He was fired and the storm blew over.

SCOTTSBLUFF STAR-HERALD:
One provision of the wage-hour bill which has received comparatively little public notice is a provision to end child labor in industry. The law provides that "oppressive child labor" will be barred in the production of goods moving in or affecting interstate commerce. "Oppressive child labor" means employment of any child under 16 years, or under 18 years in hazardous occupations. Children on farms are excepted. Children down to the age of 14 also may be employed in industries other than manufacturing and mining where such employment does not interfere with schooling and where the labor department approves. Time was, not so long ago, when it was believed an amendment to the constitution was necessary to end child labor in industry. Authorities on constitutional law now say that the Supreme court, in view of its decision upholding the Wagner labor relations act, will approve the prospective move to bar the labor of children.

The end came when the council, upon the recommendation of the zoning board, granted Mrs. M. Elsie Colman a permit to operate for two years a funeral home on her property at 148 South Twenty-seventh street. Previously, also upon the recommendation of the zoning board, the council had zoned the property for apartment use, and authorized the issuing of permits for the operation of funeral homes in apartment districts.

The council also granted a renewal of a permit for the operation of a cafe by Mrs. O. F. Eller at 2138 J street. The present permit runs until August 5. Kennedy Is Not Seeking Presidency

Indicates His Report To Roosevelt Will Not Be Cheerful

NEW YORK, June 20—(AP)—Joseph P. Kennedy, U. S. ambassador to the court of St. James, today disclaimed any intention to seek the democratic presidential nomination in 1940.

He made the remark in response to a question asked him as the Queen Mary, in which he was returning from Europe, came up the harbor.

Such an ambition for him, he said, would be a "breach of faith" with President Roosevelt.

Kennedy said he would see President Roosevelt at the white house on Thursday, and would report to him on his "economic and political observations."

While here he also would attend the graduation of his son, Joseph, jr., from Harvard university in Boston, he said.

James Roosevelt, the president's son, met Kennedy down the bay.

He declined to say whether he was "bullish" or "bearish" on the economic situation.

He indicated, however, his economic report to the president would not be cheerful. He said he had no plan for readjustment of the tri-partite monetary agreement and if there was to be an adjustment, he had not heard about it.

"If the United States should devalue," he said, "then England, France and other countries would devalue and I don't know what good devaluation would do the United States or England. It seems to me the day of devices is gone."

He said he wanted to know a great deal more about conditions here before he made any predictions, but added "it looks as though we have cried ourselves out now."

135 Attending East Cotner Conference

CRETE, Neb., June 20—(AP)—With the Rev. Albert Farmer, former Nebraska pastor now in Virginia, as dean of the conference, 135 young people of the Christian church opened the week long East Cotner conference on the Doane college campus here last night.

The Rev. R. B. Fouts of Beatrice, the vesper speaker, conducted the first service.

Others participating in the conference program include the Rev. Russell M. Bythewood of Lincoln, Mr. and Mrs. Church Smiley, missionaries to India, the Rev. Robert Hansen of Clay county and Miss Ruth Lomax of Lincoln.

Weeds Save Gardens

O'NEILL, Neb., June 20—(AP)—Many O'Neill residents are doing a most unusual thing—encouraging the growth of weeds. Grasshoppers feed on the weeds, they point out, saving gardens, tree leaves and in some instances, lawns.

Wheat Reports Are Conflicting

Observers Differ Upon Causes And Extent Of Crop Damage

Nebraska's wheat crop remained a question mark Monday in the face of conflicting reports of (1) shallow rooting; (2) orange leaf rust; (3) optimism; (4)some black stem rust; (5) an unexplained "white" condition.

Still clinging to the theory orange leaf rust would prove the most damaging factor to the 1938 crop, A. E. Anderson, state-federal crop statistician, said he would inspect the crop personally. He declined comment on reports of heavy deterioration from private observers pending his tour.

The federal estimate June 1 predicted a yield of 71,660,000 bushels, second largest in the state's history.

Private Estimates.

Various reports of damage came from private crop reporters today.

R. O. Cromwell telegraphed Chicago dealing serious retrograding of Nebraska wheat was due to shallow rooting and to orange rust in the late planted fields.

H. C. Donovan, another crop authority, told Chicago buyers damage from root exhaustion and rot was fully 60 million bushels in a strip 80-90 miles wide from south central Nebraska to central Oklahoma. He termed the damage worse than in 1927.

The Uhlmann Grain company at Chicago received a report from Hastings that "wheat seems to be holding its own. Most farmers are optimistic and they figure 10 to 20 bushels through this territory. Black rust seems to be general but in a light form and too late to do any material damage."

Earlier, some crop observers in the southern section of the panhandle predicted serious yield reductions from mid-May frost damage but did not estimate the extent of the deterioration.

Anderson also reported a condition, with the wheat turning white instead of its normal golden yellow.

R. C. Kinch, state seed analyst, meanwhile, said examination of several winter wheat samples from various parts of Nebraska showed more orange leaf rust than black stem rust.

"In fact," he explained, "there was very little evidence of black stem rust. Damage from orange leaf rust shouldn't be so severe until it reaches the third stage in about 20 days. Thus the early wheat ought to escape any severe damage because it will be harvested before that time."

Stole Train Ride—Bert Turner, 2034 O street, pleaded guilty to stealing a ride on a Rock Island train June 18, when arraigned in Municipal court Monday and was fined $10 and costs. He was arrested by Special Agent Beard.

Harry Babcock Files For State Auditor

Lincoln Insurance Executive Enters Primaries On The Republican Ticket

Harry L. Babcock, 44, Lincoln insurance executive filed Monday in the republican primaries as a candidate for state auditor. Babcock, who was educated in Lincoln and Chicago, is an accountant by profession.

His grandfather, H. A. Babcock, was state auditor in 1885-1889, and his father, E. C. Babcock served as deputy state auditor and deputy state treasurer, and was state accountant in the auditor's office at the time of his death in 1931.

In the present period of enormous public spending, Babcock said, and with the state auditor the guardian of the taxpayers' money, he promises to "require every spending officer of the state of Nebraska to keep all accounts strictly within the provisions of the law and to check and double-check every claim for payment, before and not after the money is spent."

He promises to exercise the functions of that office "as comptroller of state funds and challenge all unauthorized or unnecessary state expenditures."

OATS CROP BEST IN YEARS, HAECKER SAYS

Returning from a tour of various sections of Nebraska, A. L. Haecker, state dairy bureau chief, reported today the 1938 oats crop "looks the best in years."

"Ordinarily, when there is a rust scare, the oats suffer quite a bit," he said. "This year, however, the rust seems to be confined to the wheat."

Visits to numerous creameries, he said, showed the weed flavoring is "fading out" of cream. The serious threat of several weeks ago, Haecker asserted, is subsiding, principally due to the state ...ation to destro thye weeds.

Japan War Fleet Trying To Blast Yangtze Barrier

U. S. And British Boats Ready To Evacuate Neutrals

SHANGHAI, June 20—(AP)—Striking both from land and air, the Japanese today sought to blast out the barricade of rock-laden boats at Matowchen which is blocking their drive up the Yangtze river to Hankow.

While Japanese planes continued to bombard the boom, an overland column forded the swollen Tsien river and marched into Hotow, 30 miles northwest of Matochen, threatening a rear attack against Chinese forces guarding the barrier.

American and British gunboats are waiting at Kiukiang, prepared to protect property and evacuate neutrals if necessary.

Meanwhile, the Japanese river fleet, said by the Chinese to include 100 ships, continued to shell both shores above Anking, Anhwei province capital, and sweep the Yangtze for mines.

The Chinese reported four Japanese vessels were sunk in a raid by eight heavy bombers late yesterday. A Japanese naval communique confirmed the raid, but denied any ships were sunk.

The Chinese said several attempts to land Japanese troops on the south bank of the Yangtze above Naking had been blocked.

At Kaifeng, in the Yellow river flood area, engineers expressed the belief that the present flood had reached its peak and said the breached dikes could be repared before a second rise expected in July. They estimated at least 30,000 persons were drowned and missing as a result of the flood, while 100,000 had lost their homes.

Omaha-Council Bluffs Bridge To Ak-Sar-Ben

Purchase Price $2,350,000; Will Be Operated Free When Pays For Self

OMAHA, June 20—(AP)—Purchase for $2,350,000 of the Douglas street Missouri river bridge between Omaha and Council Bluffs by Ak-Sar-Ben, Omaha Exposition company, was announced today.

Ak-Sar-Ben announced intention of making the bridge, now a toll crossing, a free bridge as soon as it pays for itself.

Sellers are the Omaha and Council Bluffs Railway and Bridge company, operating in Council Bluffs, and the Omaha and Council Bluffs Street Railway company, operating in Omaha.

Purchase will be financed by the Knights of Ak-Sar-Ben, a Nebraska corporation wholly owned by the Ak-Sar-Ben Exposition company, with four per cent revenue bonds. The bonds must be paid solely out of bridge revenue and the bond holders will have no mortgage on the bridge itself.

Paid For By 1944.

According to estimates prepared for Ak-Sar-Ben, if title to the bridge is obtained by July 1, the bridge will have paid for itself by May 15, 1944, the governors of Ak-Sar Ben said. The governors, however, propose to continue collections of tolls to apply on the debt of the South Omaha bridge, financed in part by the Public Works Administration, and to pay off this debt, it is estimated that two additional years of toll-collection on the Douglas street span will be necessary.

This estimate would make both the Douglas and South Omaha bridges free by 1946, or in about eight years, if the present plans are carried to a conclusion.

The bond issue will be purchased by not more than eight to 12 Omaha banks and insurance companies, a spokesman for Ak-Sar-Ben said. There will be no financing charge, no underwriters charge, no broker's fee for the bond issue. These, the spokesman said, have been eliminated because the purchase is looked upon as a civic enterprise.

The deed to Ak-Sar-Ben will specify the bridge, when paid for, must be offered free of encumbrance to the states of Nebraska and Iowa. If they refuse it, the deed provides, it will be offered to Omaha and Council Bluffs, or either of them.

Mayor Dan B. Butler announced, however, he would oppose any move to turn the bridge over to the city if it were offered while he is mayor.

"I won't be a party to such a deal," the mayor said. "In my opinion, the price for the bridge is a million and a half too high."

The governors of Ak-Sar-Ben are George Brandeis, chairman; W. O. Swanson, A. A. Lowman, J. H. Wright, jr.; Yates, W. H. Schellberg, J. E. Davidson, Bert Murphy and De Emmett Bradshaw.

Bernice McIlravy Given 2 to 5 Years

Tecumseh Water Department Cashier Sentenced On Embezzlement Count

TECUMSEH, Neb., June 20—(AP)—District Judge Virgil Falloon sentenced Bernice McIlravy today to serve two to five years in the women's reformatory at York after she admitted taking $1,200 worth of city funds during the last two years.

Miss McIlravy, bookkeeper and cashier for the city water and light department 14 years, said she realized the gravity of her action but did not explain it. She denied taking the full amount of $3,857 which she was charged with embezzling.

Judge Falloon ordered her to make double restitution of the $1,200 she admitted taking. Although bonded, her surety covered only $1,000.

Possibility of Truce In Spanish War Looms

would collapse before the end of April.

The possibility of arranging a truce in Spain will be explored fully by Britain this week, informed persons disclosed.

The question of mediation will be raised at a meeting tomorrow of the chairman's subcommittee of the 27-nation committee on non-intervention in Spain. British officials are hopeful of achieving progress in this meeting, which will discuss evaluation of foreign troops fighting in Spain.

Ready to Compromise.

France and Italy have given assurances of their readiness to compromise on this issue, but the attitude of soviet Russia remains a big question mark.

Britain attempted to hasten the neutrality committees work as opposition leaders raised charges that the Italian move was an attempt to drive a wedge between Britain and France on the eve of the visit to Paris June 28 of King George VI and Queen Elizabeth.

The French government was reported to have decided to dispatch a diplomatic mission to the Spanish insurgent government

The British government announced that a commission of British, Swedish and Norwegian experts would leave for Spain soon to determine whether aerial bombardments in the civil war have been directed at military objectives.

Explosion In Home Does Much Damage

caused the oaken flooring in the living room directly above the water-heater to bulge up nearly three feet and broke several upstairs windows. Two heavy doors of a double garage in the basement were hurled nearly 60 feet. All of the basement windows were blown from their casings and debris was scattered for several feet in all directions around the house.

Estimate Of Damage.

Damage to the furniture was estimated at $2,000 to $3,000 while damage to the house—a seven-room, one-story stone structure built at a cost of $22,000—was tentatively set at $5,000. Swift said that loss is covered by insurance.

The owner believed that the explosion had been caused by an accumulation of gas but was at a loss to offer any explanation. There were no natural gas connections in the house, he said, and the water-heater burned fuel-oil. He discounted the theory that a clogged steam-pipe could have caused the blast because the heater—of cast iron construction—would have broken at a pressure of only 30 pounds.

Swift said that the explosion drove pieces of furniture into the ceiling on the first floor of the house and lifted a 300-pound radiator from its base. A grand piano, he said, was resting on other furniture after the blast.

The side of a car belonging to Vincil Swift, which was in the basement garage, was damaged and all of its windows were broken. Water flooded the basement when pipes were torn from their connections and a large hole was torn through a two and one-half foot brick wall near the heater.

Explosion Heard For Blocks.

The report of the explosion was heard for several blocks and neighbors said that a cloud of black smoke rose into the air.

The rooms which had been occupied by the nurses were in the southwest part of the basement. The door was blown into the rooms and windows on the south were shattered.

Swift and his son were in bedrooms on the northeast and northwest corners of the house. Swift said that the explosion lifted his bed several feet from the floor.

It was believed by firemen that had the garage doors not offered an outlet for the force of the explosion, the damage would have been much greater. The furniture in the house was removed to a warehouse Sunday afternoon.

Provisions Announced For Loans On Wheat

houses but not required to operate under the federal act.

Wheat of lower than No. 3 grade, official standard, will not be accepted. Hard red and durum wheat must contain more than 14½ per cent moisture and other grades not more than 14 per cent.

In making loans on wheat in the farm warehouses, the wheat must have been threshed and in storage for thirty days prior to inspection and hard spring or Durum shall contain not more than 13½ per cent moisture and other classes not more than 13 per cent. Moisture content in farm warehouses is placed lower because they do not have the drying equipment that commercial elevators have.

Weight Provision.

Whether farm or commercial storage, the weight of the dockage will be deducted from the total weight in arriving at the net quantity subject to loan.

Chairman Floyd Bollen of the state railway commission said that many farmers have been under the impression that loans will be made only on grain in federally licensed warehouses. That, he said, is not the case, He recently went to Washington for a conference with department of agriculture officials and it is agreed that the Commodity Credit corporation will accept farm warehouse receipts issued by the commission, also Nebraska public warehouse receipts, but the bond must be $10,000 for public warehouses instead of the $5,000 required of those licensed by the government.

Commission Hearings

The Nebraska liquor commission announced today seven hearings on appeals from local governing bodies for Wednesday and Thursday. The schedule:

All are beer appeals except the Sullivans', which involves a package liquor permit.

Watson Workers Still On Strike

Union And Operators Striving To Reach An Agreement

OMAHA, June 20—(AP)—Differences between the General Drivers union and the Nebraska Commercial Truckers association appeared little changed Monday despite a 10-hour conference Sunday. Another session was scheduled Monday afternoon.

Charles E. Hall, association secretary, confirmed a report an effort was being made to reach a working agreement for a period to allow time to negotiate a permanent contract on wages, hours and other points to replace one which expired June 1.

Farrell Dobbs, Minneapolis union official and chief union conferee, declined comment other than "we're making progress."

Meanwhile, drivers and helpers of the Watson Brothers Transportation company, estimated by union officials at 400, remained on strike. The company, a member of the association, operates 264 trucks in several midwestern states.

40 LOST LIVES IN MONTANA WRECK

tragedy, the worst in recent years in American railroading, said he would delay his inquest until after recovery of the bodies.

Federal Inquiry Begins.

The interstate commerce commission, however, began an inquiry.

Sixteen bodies, 11 of them identified, have been recovered from the wreckage. Another, that of an unidentified woman, was taken from the Yellowstone river, into which Custer creek flows, about 50 miles from the scene of the tragedy.

Porters told of seeing as many as five or six bodies carried away by the 20-foot flood that rolled down the creek channel.

Flood Waters Recede.

The flood waters, which had carried out a 180-foot bridge just before the fast, air-conditioned train arrived at the crossing early yesterday, continued to subside slowly today.

Salvage workers said the receding water would permit them to dig the bodies from the submerged sleeper.

As the muddy water fell back from the windows of the half overturned car, witnesses said they could see the bodies of passengers, some still in their seats. Lights in the sleeper had burned almost until dawn yesterday.

A train walker had reported Custer creek, 26 miles east of Miles City, almost dry just a few minutes before the train arrived.

Seven Cars Pile Up.

But the flood water was running almost at track level when the racing locomotive pitched into the creek. Seven of the 12 cars behind it piled up in a jackstraw heap of bent steel.

Milwaukee officials said the train carried at least 155 passengers and a crew of 10.

With 17 known dead, 44 in hospitals, 37 treated for minor injuries, and 41 others reported unharmed, rescue workers were hopeful the total dead would not exceed 40. J. J. Oslie, assistant general passenger agent for the Milwaukee railroad at St. Paul, was at the scene and estimated the dead would number 36.

Survivors and rescue workers agreed that many more lives might have been lost had not the more cool-headed passengers and crew members skillfully aided their fellows out of the water-filling cars.

"Everyone Quite Calm."

Graphically relating how passengers escaped from his car, F. Woltz, a Winnebago, Minn., businessman, declared that "everyone was quite calm, there was no hysteria at all."

"One end of the car next to us was in water and we hollered to the people in that car that it was not sinking and to stay there as they'd be safe," Woltz said.

The Chicago man said two other men followed him out through a broken window.

"We pulled the people in the car from my window up to the top of the sleeper. Someone found a ladder and we put it from the chair car to the tender and people walked over the rungs," Woltz related.

At the hospital, and at the Miles City morgue where relatives came to claim their dead, stories of the tragedy and of heroism were told by the survivors.

Ten Year Old Tells Story.

Ten year old Anne Laddas, whose mother was dead and whose father was missing, related how she tried desperately to keep her mother's head above the swirling water.

When the mother, Mrs. Thomas Laddas, fainted from shock, the small girl grabbed her hair and held her head above water for several minutes.

Anne's brother, nine year old George, suffered a broken arm. Unable to comprehend the tragedy he kept crying, "I want my mamma and daddy."

"But you haven't any mamma and daddy any more," the boy's sister tried bravely to explain. The family was enroute home to Bellingham, Wash., from a visit to Greece.

A negro porter on the train, Lew Williams was credited by survivors with possibly saving several lives by calmly directing passengers out of his car.

Teeters on Bank.

One of the cars teetered on the creek bank several minutes before it slid into the water with the others.

Seven Milwaukee railroad employes, who knew Custer creek as a ravine that usually carried no more than "a bucket of water," were riding the Olympian as passengers. They joined regular trainmen in helping out the survivors, and two of them telephoned first news of the tragedy to Miles City.

Mike Cain and Ed Hamm, brakemen, crawled over the twisted pile of steel cars, made their way to Saugus, a small station, and telephoned for help.

William Shearer, veteran Milwaukee engineer, said the railroad men were "chewing the fat" in the first day coach when the crash occurred.

Usually A Dry Creek.

"I thought we were just on the ground at first," Shearer said. "Then I realized we were in water and I said "boys we're in the old Yellowstone."

"It was a few minutes before I found out it was Custer creek. Why, I've put a train over these tracks thousands of times, and I never saw mor than a bucket of water in that creek at once," Shearer said.

"Well, we all crawled out of our coach. It was hard to see very much. The mail, express and baggage cars, which were between us and the locomotive were piled up every which way.

"We crawled along the pile like monkeys, wondering how anyone could be alive.

"Cain and Hamm were the first to get out on the bank. They went to Saugus and telephoned for help. Then Chris McGee—he was the conductor of the train—and I got out.

See A Woman Jump.

"We all crawled back over the wreckage again—I knew the boys in the engine must be dead. We saw a woman jump out of a window she smashed. She floated down against the pile of wreckage and I think she must have been drowned.

"Her husband yelled for us to help her, but it was no use.

"The other men in our group—there were Henry Shipley, fireman, Chauncey Tarbox, conductor Jerry Clifford, eingineer; and John Umhoefer, retired conductor, were all "deadheading" to their homes in Miles City.

"They helped the people get out of the cars, but it was bad going," Shearer said.

Shearer said Frank Merrifield, engineer of the train, was "one of the best men that ever handled a locomotive."

The wreck was the first on the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul lines in 20 years that cost a passenger's death.

California Sending For Man Nabbed at G. I.

GRAND ISLAND, June 20—(AP)—John Reynolds Hare, alias John Lyons, one of three men arrested by police last week is to be returned to Los Angeles for bond default on a grand theft charge, Acting Police Chief Al Bockhahn stated Monday.

Proposal Is Made To Have Construction Quarters at Lemoyne

HASTINGS, Neb., June 20—(AP)—The little town of Lemoyne may play another role before it is submerged beneath the waters of the North Platte river.

Directors of the Central Nebraska (Tri-County) Public Power and Irrigation district discussed today the possibility of converting the town into construction headquarters for Tri-County's big Kingsley dam, now being built to back up 2,000,000 acre feet of water in the valley where Lemoyne sits.

Officials explained use of the town might reimburse the PWA project for money being spent to purchase the town's real estate. If the proposal is adopted, the district's offices at Ogallala, eight miles from the dam site, would be abandoned.

State Buys 75 Portable Incubators To Save Lives of Premature Babies

The state purchased 75 portable incubators for $543.75 to be made available to physicians in the saving of lives of infants of "premature birth."

Dr. P. H. Bartholomew, state health director, said this was the first step in plans to place such incubators in each of Nebraska's 93 counties. The contract for the 75 incubators, awarded by State Purchasing Agent J. R. Farris on a competitive bid basis, went to M. L. Henderson of Lincoln.

Alternative Provided.

Specifications for the incubators provide for the use of alternative methods of heating so that, for instance, if it is necessary to rush one to a farm not equipped with electricity the incubator can still be used. The specifications, drawn up by the state health department, were made after a study of similar incubators successfully being used in other states.

Dr. Bartholomew said that "there is, of ourse, no question but that such incubators are often the difference between life or death for a child prematurely born."

The maternal and child health committee of he Nebraska State Medical association has co-operated with the department in the portable incubator plan and county medical societies will have charge of the use of them.

TRUCK SITUATION QUIET IN LINCOLN

Air Commission Asks Doyle's Resignation

Aeronautics Secretary Has No Comment On Report; Had Charge Of Mail Week

The Nebraska Aeronautics commission has asked its secretary, Charles S. Doyle, to resign July 1, it was learned Monday.

Doyle, when asked for comment on the report, answered, "I have nothing whatever to say at this time."

One of the commission members, Dr. W. W. Arrasmith of Grand Island, who is moving to Casper, Wyo., has submitted his resignation to the governor. No successor has yet been named. Dr. Arrasmith's resignation, however, is not connected with the reequest made of Doyle.

Doyle has been secretary of the commission since its creation by the 1935 legislature. He is paid from commission funds. Members of the commission, appointed by the governor, are non-salaried.

Directed Mail Week.

Doyle was recently active in conducting Nebraska's part of the national air mail week celebration and under his direction more air mail was carried during that time than in any other state except Illinois.

The four active commissioners have announced no reason for their request that Doyle resign.

Other than Dr. Arrasmith, commission members are C. J. Campbell of Lincoln; Clyde Sharrar and W. J. Hotz of Omaha and W. S. Rodman, jr., of Kimball.

Omaha Woman "About Frantic" Seeking Son On Wrecked Train

The body of Dixon Post, of Omaha, was recovered from a submerged coach of the Olympian by rescue workers early Monday afternoon. The Associated Press reported.

OMAHA, June 20—(AP)—Mrs. Florence M. Post, of Omaha, a passenger on the Olympian, crack train that plunged through a flood-weakened trestle in Montana yesterday, told The Omaha World Herald by long distance telephone today she was "about frantic" seeking her missing son, Dixon.

"I'm about frantic. Nobody will help me. Wherever I go they tell me they haven't time to help me; that they have too much to do to help the injured. I don't know what I will do until I find Dixon. And maybe I won't find him—what will I do then?" the paper quoted her as saying.

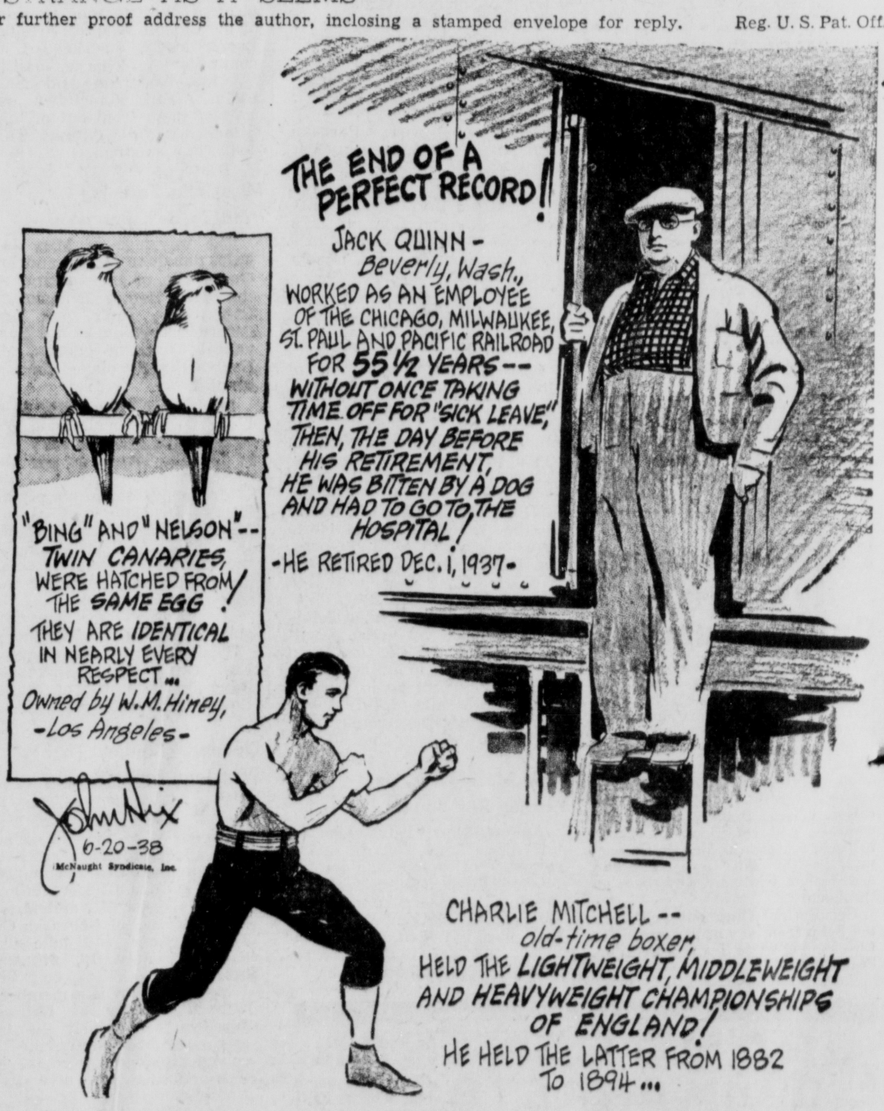

Dixon, 29, is a clerk at the Woodmen of the World headquarters here. His mother is 65. She was riding in a pullman that did not leave the track. Dixon, she said was riding in a coach that went into the creek.

Two other Omahans were reported on the train. They were Miss Valerie Conway, 40, and Mrs. C. H. Lear. Mrs. Lear was reported injured, but no definite word on Miss Conway was available. A "Miss Conway, Seattle," was listed among the missing.

Almost Perfect Record . . .

Here is one case when a dog bit a man—and it WAS news:

Jack D. Quinn of Beverly, Washington, up to November, 1937, had never missed a day's work because of sickness during the entire 55½ years he worked for the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul & Pacific railroad.

Quinn prided himself on this record. He laid plans for his retirement on December 1—a retirement which was to be doubly honorable because of his splendid attendance record.

Then, as fate would have it, on November 30 he was confronted with a dog—a vicious dog. It bit him. Sad as it seems, Quinn spent that last day in the hospital instead of at work!

Quinn started with the road as a construction laborer in 1882 and made his first trip as a fireman in 1888. Next year he was promoted to locomotive engineer, in which position he served until his retirement.

Canary Twins . . .

Just like two peas in a pod are "Bing" and "Nelson," twin canaries owned by William M. Hiney of Los Angeles. Strange as it seems, both birds were hatched from a single egg!

Both are males, yellow with the conspicuous top knot inherited from the mother, a yellow warbler top knot. Since hatching last July they have grown up with amazingly similar idiosyncrasies.

"Nelson," however, has the song of his father a Hartz Mountain roller, while "Bing" sings the song of a warbler. Strange as it seems, the only outward difference in appearance is in the birds' wings; "Bing's" left wing has dark feathers, while "Nelson's" right wing has dark. Hiney has refused offers as high as $1,000 for the pair.

3-In-1 Champion. . . .

Charlie Mitchell won the heavyweight glove title of England in a competition in 1882 and retained it until his retirement in 1894, successfully defending it against John L. Sullivan in March 1888 at Chantilly, France. Mitchell also held the lightweight and middleweight title of England.

BRAIN TWIZZLERS

By Prof. J. D. Flint

A murder was committed on New Year's Eve in New York. Four men were held as suspects. These men were known to the police as The Killer, Spike, Chuck and Rollo. They were questioned and each made four statements, only one of which is false. Here they are:

Rollo: I never was in New York. I did not murder the man. I don't know anything about the murder. The Killer and I were in Washington on New Year's Eve.

Chuck: I'm not guilty. I was with the Killer New Year's Eve. Rollo is a total stranger to me. Rollo is innocent.

Spike: I'm not guilty. Rollo and The Killer were never in Washington. Chuck did it. Rollo helped Chuck commit the murder.

The Killer: I was in Washington with Rollo on New Year's Eve. I never saw Spike before. I did not commit the murder. Spike lied when he said Rollo helped Chuck do it.

From these statements can you tell which was the guilty man:

Answer To Saturday's Twizzler.

There were two more drinks on the side with four men at one table and six at the other because at one round each there were 36 and 16, total 52. The other side had five men at each table, 25 and 25 drinks, total 50.

Bonds Carry At Cook

(Special to The Star.)

TECUMSEH, Neb., June 20—At a election in the town of Cook, bonds for a proposed town auditorium in the sum of $5,000 were carried. The vote was 152 for the bonds and six against. There were 14 mailed ballots. At the regular April election bonds for this purpose in the sum of $5,000 were successful, but the town officers did not believe the amount to be sufficient to secure the site and building, hence the second election. The town now has $10,000 for the erection of the proposed building.

Champion Joe Serves Notice Be No Idle Moments When the Gong Is Clanged.

By GAYLE TALBOT.

NEW YORK, June 20—(AP)—The golden rain continues to pour down on the box office, Mike Jacobs becomes hoarser by the hour as he croaks "plenty of tickets left," and the long-awaited return fight between Max Schmeling and Joe Louis for the heavyweight title is only three nights away.

"Two Rounds," Says Joe.

Louis, the 24-year-old negro champion, still declares he will bat Schmeling's brains out in "not more than two rounds" as he does a final bit of loafing around his training camp at Pompton Lakes before motoring in for the weigh-in Wednesday noon.

Schmeling, the same maddengly confident German who interrupted Joe's senational career with a twelfth-round knockout two summers ago, winds up his preparation with four leisurely rounds of boxing at his high camp in Speculator.

Things otherwise are reaching a focus. Fifteen thousand "ringside" seats are being knocked together at the Yankee Stadium, and the fistic experts, gathered here to represent newspapers over most of the civilized world, are beginning to look drawn and haggard as the time in which they can "guess right" grows shorter.

Coming Out Fighting.

A lot of them jumped to the Louis banner yesterday as Joe wound up his training in a savage onslaught on his negro spar mates. He looked like the old brown bomber, as full of poison as a cobra, and a banner delegation from Harlem whooped it up.

"I'm coming out fighting—or else there wouldn't be no fight," Joe told his interviewers, ominously.

Schmeling didn't sound particularly impressed when told that Louis still was threatening to skin him alive.

"Yah?" he queried politely. "Dot's very good. If he doesn't change his mind I will be champion quicker."

Max has been taking it very easy for the last 10 days, ever since he scared his trainer, Max Machon, silly by displaying symptoms of reaching peak condition too quickly.

Champ In Fine Fettle.

Louis, on the other hand, appears to have been brought to fighting pitch exactly on schedule by his wise old trainer, Jack Blackburn. He is in beautiful trim and looks lithe and slim, despite his 200 pounds.

The odds on Louis to retain his title still are running 8 to 5 and better, and indications are that this is going to be one of the big betting events in fight history.

Louis admirers are banking heavily on the fact that no heavyweight champion ever has regained the throne, as well as on the accepted premise that Louis, as the defending titleholder, is more likely to get the nod if the fight goes the distance and is close.

One Whipping Does It.

Schmeling's loyal following quotes another popular fistic adage: "Once you whip a man, he's whipped," inferring that the negro hasn't forgotten the brutal punishment Schmeling gave him before.

Representatives of the two fighters will meet at the offices of the boxing commission tomorrow and toss some words about. They still are wrangling about the gloves to be used, Louis holding out for the good old Chicago brand with the big thumbs, and Schmeling yelling no. It is possible that each will be permitted to wear the mitt of his choice.

Counting the money taken in yesterday, the advance sale was, roughly, $700,000, and Promoter Jacobs continued to sing of a million-dollar gate. Ten thousand general admission tickets will be thrown on sale at 6 o'clock Wednesday evening at $3.50 a head.

Legion Jr. Baseball.

Three American league junior baseball games are on the docket for 1:30 Tuesday afternoon at Muny Field, with DuTeaus meeting Lawlors, Golds vs. South Side Midgets and Modern vs. Dr. Pepper.

Games in the National division Monday afternoon were Magees vs. South Side Midgets, Cornhusker vs. Iowa-Nebraska Power and O'Shea-Rogers vs. Traction.

Dynamite Henry To Fight Filipino

LOS ANGELES, June 20—(INS)—Guaranteed $60,000, Henry Armstrong today had agreed to defend his welterweight title against Ceferino Garcia, hard-hitting Filipino, in Los Angeles in September.

The outdoor 10-round battle will be staged at Wrigley baseball field regardless of the outcome of "Hustling Hennery's" joust with Lou Ambers in New York on July 26 in quest of a third championship, Promoter Tom Gallery stated.

Garcia would be the hardest hitter the negro perpetual motion machine has gone against. Armstrong probably would have to spot the islander about 10 pounds. Although Garcia was stopped twice by Freddie Steele and once by Young Peter Jackson, his later fights showed decided improvement.

LINKS AGAIN IN DOUBLE DIVY

Griffin Gang Drops Game Then Comes Back To Split Spoils.

Lincoln's Links gained an even break with Sioux Falls Sunday at Sioux Falls, dropping the afternoon game by a 6-3 tally, but capturing the night battle, 4-0, behind Joe Hraba's nifty two-hit pitching performance. The teams wind up the series Monday night, Lincoln then returning home to meet Norfolk and Beatrice.

The only hits the Canaries were able to tag off Hraba were by Hennessey, a double, and Voss, a single. Lincoln scored a tally in the first inning on singles by DeJarnett, Eaton and Kakoliris and iced the clash with two runs in the ninth on an error and doubles by Marchi and Gregory.

It was a different story in the opener. The Canaries tagged Kolesar for six runs in the first three innings. From then on, Kolesar hurled shutout ball, but the Links were unable to dent the pitching of Wells and Brodahl, who combined to give Lincoln only four base blows.

Sioux City climbed into a tie for third place by splitting with Grand Island, winning the first, 12-3 and losing the second, 6-1, while Beatrice lost to Norfolk, 12-4. The scores:

Mile Duel On Schedule For Renewal Saturday

MINNEAPOLIS, June 20—(AP)—The mile run, with Louis Zamperini of Southern California and Charles Fenske of Wisconsin battling for the lead, promises to be one of the highlights of the track meet to be held Saturday at Evanston, Ill., between Pacific Coast conference and western conference athletes.

Zamperini helped Southern California to its fourth successive national collegiate championship last Saturday when he sprinted past Fenske to win the mile in a record-breaking 4:08.3 in the University of Minnesota's memorial stadium. His time was six-tenths of a second faster than the mark set by Bill Bonthron of Princeton in 1934 at Los Angeles.

'TRANS' CHAMPION GOES AROUND TWO UNDER PAR

Amateur GOLF

By JOHNNY HOWELL.

BROADVIEW had one of its busiest days Sunday, as the weather drove members to the pool and lawn for cool comfort from the blistering sun.

Over 175 golfers made a circuit trip of the 18-hole layout, most of them playing their matches in the handicap tournament. Charles Maule had the best score of the day, coming home with a 73. Ralph Scott and Dr. Sanderson tied with 78s for the next lowest ball.

Results of the first round matches in the handicap tournament stand:

THE City handicap league shared the spotlight with the City scratch league in the Sunday play at Pioneers. The members of these teams were a part of the 266 golfers that played the course.

Gordon McEntire, former Nebraska U. golf star and one of the local entries in the Trans-Mississippi tournament, had low score for the day, shooting a snappy 70.

In the handicap league—Golds tied the Reed's sharp-shooters, with 3 points apiece. Iowa-Nebraska whitewashed the Journal outfit, 6-0. Millers and Safeways split with 3 each. Postoffice outscored O'Shea's, 3½ to 2½. First National downed Forest Service, 3½ to 2½. Hardy's gained 4 points to Rudges' 2.

These were the second round matches in the last half of the tournament play. The standings are: First group—Reed's, 8; Iowa-Nebraska, 7; Journal, 5; Golds, 4. Second group—Post Office, 8; Safeways, 6; O'Shea's, 5½; Millers, 4½. Third group—Rudges, 7; Forest Service, 6½; Hardy's, 6; First National, 4½.

Low honors for the day in this tournament went to Melvin Schmidt's 77. Woods carded an eagle 3 on No. 3 and shot 83 for second low honors.

There is one more round of play left in the handicap tournament this year and it probably will be postponed a week to give the team members an opportunity to view the finals of the Trans-Mississippi next Sunday.

In the Scratch league, Lawlors downed Reed's, 4½ to 1½. Fisher-Kissler, Reed's, best ball, 37-36—73, broke even with Kaufman-Myers, Lawlors, best ball, 38-36—73, with 1½ points each. McEntire, Lawlors, won three points with a 36-34—70, from Root-Frocheiser, Reed's, best ball, 38-38—76.

The Lincoln Packers and Wilson's had to postpone their match. McEntire led the field with a 70. Morris Fisher had 74. Heinie Herzog had a 75. Harry Kaufman shot 77. B. Myers shot a 78 and J. Luse came in with a 79.

Mixed doubles play held sway in the afternoon and 16 couples vied for honors. Jim Easton and Mrs. William Seick won the event with a low net score of 34 for the nine holes. Mr. and Mrs. Paul Ohlheiser won second honors with a low net of 35. Beverly Finkle and Mrs. Botsford shot a 36 along with Jerry Childress and Mrs. Harold Dutter.

Following mixed foursome play, dinner was served in the dining room. Mr. and Mrs. Jim Easton and Mr. and Mrs. John Howe acted as hosts and hostesses.

Next Tuesday, in connection with the regular ladies' day, the members have invited the women golfers of the Lincoln Country club to share their activities because of the Trans-Mississippi tournament at the Country club.

WALTER WHITTEN, genial secretary of the Lincoln Chamber of Commerce, was inspired Saturday by the vast field of visitors playing at the Lincoln Country club.

After three long shots down the fairway on No. 11, a 550-yard hole, his ball lay on the apron 15 yards beyond the cup. He chipped with a niblick and the ball rolled into the cup for a birdie four.

By ALEX STODDARD.

WITH golf interest in the Capital City area at fever pitch, some 200 or 250 linksmen more or less nationally prominent are marking time until Tuesday morning, when qualifying rounds for the 1938 Trans-Mississippi amateur tournament begin over the Lincoln Country club course. It is the thirty-eighth annual tourney sponsored by the "Trans" association.

Lincoln's Second Tourney.

It will be the second major tournament ever held in Lincoln. Several years ago Lincoln sportsmen conceived the idea of sponsoring a Nebraska Open, but this tournament died out after the first meeting, held on the Shrine (now Broadview) lay-out, with Ky Laffoon of Denver grabbing the lion's share of the laurels.

A year ago, officials of the Lincoln Country club put in a bid for the Trans-Mississippi tournament, annually one of the nation's more important amateur competitions. Since announcement of the selection of the Lincoln club as the 1938 tourney site, officials have been working harder than ever to make this summer's tourney one of the most successful in history.

Goodman Likely Missing.

Only the probable absence of Johnny Goodman, national amateur champion and member of the Walker cup team, mars the tourney outlook. Goodman, in Omaha, stated that he did not plan to compete.

Blaine Young, member of the Trans-Mississippi association executive board, announced Monday that Bud Ward, the sensational Olympia, Wash., member of the Walker cup team, would not compete. Ward, who stated upon his return from England that he would seek the Trans title, was forced to re-arrange his plans and hurry to the coast.

The trans tourney, however, will not lack for class, even with Goodman and Ward on the absent list. Presence of Defending Champion Don Schumacher of Dallas, Johnny Watson of Chicago and a host of other dazzlers will make for one of the "fastest" fields ever to compete in a tourney sponsored by the Trans-Mississippi association.

Bliss In The Running.

Rod Bliss of Omaha apparently stands the best chance among Nebraska's entries. Bliss, state champion, has been burning up Omaha courses and has set his sights on the "Trans" crown. H. R. "Monk" Wilson of Lincoln, a former state champion, is regaining the form which made him tough, while Gordon McEntire of Lincoln and Bob Fraser of Omaha apparently are tops among the younger Cornhusker linksmen making a bid for the title.

John Kraft, the Colorado state champion, and Ralph Vranesic, state junior champ of Colorado, lead a large Colorado contingent in the tournament. Bob Croniff of Oklahoma City jumped into the limelight Sunday when he fired a sub-par 71 on his first round over the Country club course and may be a serious threat.

Texans Here In Force.

Harry Todd and Rufus King of Dallas give Texas a formidable entry list, along with Champ Schumacher. "Trailer" Bill Holt, Francis Lynch and H. L. Gilmore, all of Syracuse, N. Y., and Chuck Taylor of Jacksonville, Fla., win the palm for travelling the longest distance to compete in the tournament.

Contestants go thorugh the 18-hole qualifying round Tuesday. The low 64 are grouped in the championship flight, the next 64 make up the President's flight, and the next 16 will be paired in competion for the Country Club trophy. Consolation matches will be run off in all classes. Seniors, players over 50 years of age, will qualify for a 16-player tournament, with the club sponsoring the winner gaining possession of the Harry G. Legg trophy for a year.

Team Competition.

Teams will compete for the Brock cup during the Tuesday qualifying round. Auction of championship flight contestants will be a feature of the Tuesday night dinner.

Wednesday, first round matches will be held in all four flights. Thursday, second and third round matches will be played in the championship and president's flights, with quarter-finals Friday, semi-finals Saturday and finals Sunday. Other divisions work down at a less rapid gait but finals also are on the Sunday book.

That Schumacher will not relinquish his crown without a fight was shown Sunday when he carded a 34-36—70, two under par. The Texan birdied the third and eighth holes going out, went one over on the twelfth and birdied the thirteenth. His card:

Schumacher Under Par.

Out—
Par 4 4 4 4 3 4 4 5 4—36
Schumacher—
4 4 3 4 3 4 4 4 4—34
In—
Par 3 5 3 5 3 4 4 5 4—36—72
Schumacher—
3 5 4 4 3 4 4 5 4—36—70

"Monk" Wilson reported a 73, one over par, despite three three-putt greens. Emil Frank, Lincoln city champion, was under by a stroke for the outside nine, but stumbled on the inside round and wound up with a 75. Whitey Reed and Jerry Hunt, both of Lincoln, scored a 75 and 77, respectively. Frank Forst also turned in a 75.

Bob Conliff, the Oklahoma City sharpshooter, added a par 72 to his 71 for a consistent performance which bodes ill for opponents. J. C. Hamilton of Oklahoma City was in with a 71. Rufus King of Dallas had a 73, including a seven on number 16, while "Trailer" Bill Holt of Syracuse, N. Y., came home in regulation figures and John Kraft, the Colorado champ, finished one over.

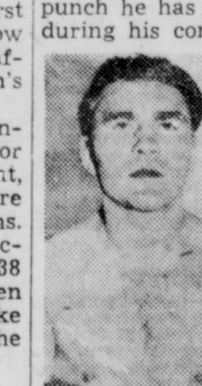

NEW PUNCH IN GERMAN'S BAG

Herr Maxie Adds Sock To Heart To Repertoire of Ring Tactics.

SPECULATOR, N. Y., June 20—(INS)—Max Schmeling planned a light workout today preparatory to leaving for New York Tuesday morning for his fight Wednesday night with Joe Louis. The German schlager looked to be "in the pink" to observers, and radiated confidence that he will again defeat the brown bomber and regain the heavyweight boxing title.

Uncorks Heart Punch.

In a fast workout yesterday, Der Moxie uncorked a new punch he has been keeping secret during his conditioning here. The punch, a left uppercut to the heart, stopped Sparring Partner Al Albin dead and he floundered helplessly for a few seconds. Steve Dudas, who lost to Schmeling in Germany last April and who was watching the workout, jumped up when he saw the blow land and exclaimed:

MAX SCHMELING.

"There it is—that punch. That's the one he used on me with murderous effect in our fight—that and a fast left hook. Don't be surprised if he finishes Louis with that combination."

Puts In Busy Day.

The black uhlan put in his last full-length training session yesterday, doing eight miles of roadwork, boxing a tofal of six rounds and performing the equivalent of five rounds of muscle-libering calisthenics. Today Moxie plans only four rounds of sparring and then will rest until he leaves for New York.

After his workout, the former champion discussed the fight and let it be known he considers Louis a usurper of the pugilistic throne. Asked what his views were on the theories he has lost something in the two years since his last fight with Louis, Schmeling smiled and said:

Good As Two Years Ago.

"I see no reason why I am not as good now as two years ago. I know I feel that way. My legs are strong. I hit as hard as ever. I can go as far as I need in this fight."

Exhibiting candid camera snapshots showing Louis closing his eyes to the jabbing of a sparring partner, Trainer Max Mahon sniffed contemptuously.

"This Louis is no smarter, no better fighter than two years ago," he declared. "Mox will win this time easier than two years ago."

Lincoln Knocked Over In Net Match

Caught in a stream of smashes and slams, the Lincoln tennis team bowed, 8 to 12, to the Omaha netsters in an intercity match at Omaha Sunday. The women's matches were the deciding factor in the rout of the capital city.

The Omaha men had a 6 to 5 advantage in the single matches. Lincoln gained top honors in the doubles play, 3 to 2. Omaha women blanked Lincoln in three matches and helped in the mixed doubles victory.

In the day's headliner, Harold Rundle, Nebraska U. star, defeated James Gleason, Omaha ace, 6-4, 6-1. Frank Pisasale, Omaha, turned back Johnny Huston, Nebraska state prep champion, in a strenuous three-set match, 7-9, 8-6, 6-2.

Diving Champ On Her Way to Full Recovery

SAN FRANCISCO, June 20—(AP)—Georgia Coleman, 1932 Olympic diving champion whose swimming activities were believed ended last November when she was stricken with polyneuritis, hopped off a low springboard Saturday.

After her plunge, she cast a longing look at the 10-foot board and told friends, "I'll be up there in a year."

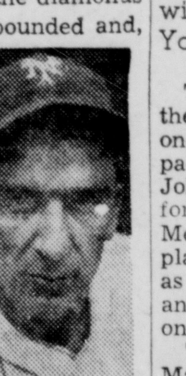

The malady paralyzed Miss Coleman's whole body at the outset.

Case of Hubbell.
Let Figures Tell.
Young and Johnson.
"Big Ten" Balks.
West Coast Mess.
Nix On Rose Bowl.

IS YOUR modern ball player of the major leagues a superior performer compared with the old-time stars who roamed the diamonds in the years agone? This particular question is often propounded and, in most cases, one hears an affirmative reply.

As for myself, I am unable to fall in with those who advocate the theory that baseball has improved mechanically, intellectually or from any other standpoint.

CARL HUBBELL

As a matter of fact, the diamond pastime of today lacks the sparkle, the aggressiveness and the will-to-win displayed by the old-timers of the national game. For when the "spirit" is missing from any sport, something has faded out of that sport which can't be replaced.

These remarks (whether or not you agree) are inspired by the recent futile efforts of Southpaw Carl Hubbell of the National league champion Giants to chalk up the 200th pitching victory of his big league career.

AS MODERN pitchers go, Hubbell probably ranks at or precious near the peak station in his profession. Master tosser of the "screw-ball," Hubbell probably would rate as tops of the pitching art wherever or whenever the baseball topic comes up for discussion.

Yet when Hubbell's victory record is set against the feats of such old-time twirlers as Cy Young and Walter Johnson—and the figures are subjected to a cold, inpartial analysis—it is at once apparent that Carl's star loses much of its dazzle.

As previously stated, Hubbell, in his eleventh year on "big time," is trying for his 200th win. Now for the comparison. In 22 years of major league toil, Cy Young stands credited with the amazing total of 511 victories, while Walter Johnson in 21 years in the majors is credited with 417 triumphs.

The comparison involving other positions and other departments of the diamond sport might be prolonged to the point of being boresome, but the pitching phase is sufficient—the unanswerable figures from the record books seemingly justify the suggestion that baseball, instead of improving during recent years, actually has gone back.

A "BIG TEN" alumnus, who asks that I refrain from disclosing his identity, writes me to scoff at recent suggestions, published in this column, in which I quoted writers in "Big Ten" and Pacific coast circles as having intimated that the two conferences are edging up to a post-season football agreement having its annual climax in the Pasadena Rose Bowl.

"Write that sort of business off," my Big Ten alumnus informant says in his communication. "That Pasadena fiction may read all right, but actually there's no foundation in fact for a Rose Bowl game involving any Big Ten conference team.

"Minnesota and one or two other Big Ten schools might be favorable, but the conference, as a whole, is dead set against permitting post-season football.

"I have a personal acquaintance with at least three Western conference delegates and have heard them speak their minds.

"As faculty members at their schools, they are firm in the belief (call it 'old-fashioned' if you wish) that education is more important than athletics; that football, if prolonged beyond the period at present permitted by conference regulations, could have no proper place in the general educational scheme. These men, I feel sure, would resolutely oppose all post-season football proposals, regardless of their nature."

INASMUCH as "Big Ten Alumnus" has spoken, making his point ring clear, I strongly suspect he has his facts on straight. Not merely because of recent developments within the Pacific Coast circle which are calculated to drive the two conferences apart, rather than bring them together.

Several months ago, the Coast conference engaged the services of G-Man Ed Atherton and contracted to pay him a round price for investigating the entire conference set-up, as applied to athletics.

The instructions to Mr. Atherton were to conduct a searching inquiry into the recruiting and subsidizing of athletes and all objectionable practices.

Regardless of whom it might hit, he was given a carte blanche order to dig to the very bottom of the west coast mess.

In stating that the G-Man has tendered a preliminary report, but that the final statement is not anticipated until next December, a San Francisco commentator bobs up to suggest:

"WHEN the final report is submitted, the conference then can lay down an honest set of rules that can be enforced; a set of rules without hokum; rules that will permit the universities to do in some way what every one knows they have to do to assist kids without funds on their way through college."

Decidedly blunt, isn't it? Practically a frank admission that bad practices are common along the western front—practices which the conference is expected to brand with the stamp of "honesty" and legality via a new set of rules.

If the Coast conference does that; if it comes out in the open to legalize recruiting and subsidizing, I am more than ever confident that "Big Ten Alumnus" is right—the Western conference would forever put its foot down on all proposals to pit a Big Ten team against a Coast conference representative in the Pasadena bowl.

Joe Stripp and Roy Henshaw, Cardinals—Stripp's twelfth inning single drove in winning runs in opener; Henshaw pitched seven-hit second game against Giants.

Coast's Athletes Set For 'Big Ten'

EVANSTON, Ill., June 20—(INS)—Fresh from their conquest in the N. C. A. A. track and field meet at Minneapolis, the University of Southern California's cinder stars were here looking for new laurels today.

They will compete in the interconference track battle between the Big Ten and the Pacific Coast at Northwestern's Dyche stadium next Saturday.

The national collegiate triumph for the Trojans at Minneapolis last Saturday was their fourth straight championship. They also won the I. C. 4-A meet in the east two weeks ago for the eighth time since 1925.

Saturday, U. S. C. will provide one-third of the coast's all-star cast of approximately 45 in the meet with the Western conference's best.

YANKS INVADE TRIBE'S CAMP

New Yorkers Go Against Cleveland Outfit In Crucial Series.

By ANTHONY J. PUGLIESE.

NEW YORK, June 20—(INS)—Awaiting face-to-face combat with the team they consider their chief opposition, the Cleveland Indians today carried a game and a half league lead into the important series with the world champion Yankees beginning Tuesday.

Thrill-Packed Sunday.

The Indians' strengthening of their perch atop the league was one of the features of a thrill-packed Sunday which saw Rookie Johnny Rizzo hit three home runs for Pittsburgh, Johnny Vander Meer pitch the Reds into second place, Babe Ruth assume his post as coach of the Brooklyn Dodgers and the Red Sox take over second spot in the junior circuit.

The Indians celebrated "Connie Mack Day" by handing the Athletics a 5 to 4 defeat on a five-run rally featured by Bruno Campbell's home run. Meanwhile, the Yankees lost their second straight to the Browns, 10 to 9, the second game of a scheduled twin bill being called in the eighth, with the score 7-all, on account of darkness.

Red Sox Second Now.

The Red Sox went into second place by half a game over the Yankees by downing the White Sox, 6 to 1, on Jim Bagby's seven-hit pitching, after the Chicagoans had copped the opener of the twin bill, 3 to 2, on Gerald Walker's homer.

Washington's six-run rally in the first inning was too much for the Tigers and despite homers by Ross and York—the latter's seventeenth of the year — the Senators won out, 10 to 6.

Rizzo connected once in the opener and hit two homers in the nightcap as the Pirates took a twin triumph from the Phillies, 14 to 4 and 16 to 3. Paul Waner hit a homer in each game as the pirates made a total of 34 hits. Davis, Martin and Arnovich hit for the circuit for Philadelphia.

Giants Twice Beaten

Despite five New York home runs—two each by Mel Ott and Harry Danning and one by Dick Bartell—the league-leading Giants dropped two games to the Cardinals, 8 to 7 in 12 innings and 4 to 2. Curt Davis and Enos Slaughter hit for the circuit for St. Louis.

Vander Meer, coming back after two straight no-hit, no-run games, held the Bees to four hits and, aided by homers by Harry Craft and Wally Berger, won his eighth victory, 14 to 1.

Vandy ran his streak of hittless innings to 21 1-3 straight before Deb Garms singled to center in the fourth. The second Reds-Bees game was washed out in the fourth inning.

Ruth Whole Show.

Babe Ruth was the whole show, cavorting before 30,000, as the Dodgers captured the first game of a bargain bill with the Cubs, 6 to 2, and then lost the nightcap, 4 to 3.

The Bambino hit some practice home runs into the stands and performed creditably as coach for the Brooks.

In the nightcap, Clay Bryant held the Dodgers to five hits and hit a home run.

Over The State.

DANNY MORGAN still is the leading jockey at the Ak-Sar-Ben race meeting with 20 firsts, 11 place and 12 show horses thus far in the meeting . . . Jimmy Ashcroft, an apprentice rider who booted four mounts first across the finish line on Saturday's program, is next with 20 wins, eight places and seven thirds . . . Track officials expect close to 100 new nags to put in appearance at the Ak plant this week . . . Meantime, Earl Beezley, the Syracuse horseman, departed with his 19-horse stable, heading for Longacres track at Seattle . . . The L. W. Kidd stable, leading money-winner at the meeting, pulls out Monday night, also for Seattle.

COTNEY HOPP, the Hastings youth now a member of the Rochester Red Wings in the International league, apparently has shaken off an arm injury which cost him a chance to remain with the St. Louis Cardinals this spring . . . Hopp hit the ball at close to a .400 gait last week when he broke into the regular Rochester lineup . . . Information from the east indicates that Hopp will try to make himself over into a first-baseman . . . Joe McDermott, boss of the Grand Island team in the State league, under whom Hopp played his first "pro" baseball, believes Cotney has an excellent chance to replace Johnny Mize as the Cardinal first-sacker as soon as he gets some experience playing the bag.

GERALD STEFFY, ace Orleans high athlete, is a bit envious of Johnny Vander Meer, the Cincinnati Reds pitcher . . . Like Vander Meer, Steffy twirled a no-hit ball game for the Orleans junior team but lost, 9-3, because of a defensive breakdown in the infield . . . John Schumacher and Carl "Snick" Polling of Nebraska City, leading southeast Nebraska linksmen, plan to compete in the Trans-Mississippi tournament starting Tuesday at the Lincoln Country club.

WAHOO, with eight wins and no defeats, and Schuyler, with a perfect record in seven games, are on top in the Elkhorn Valley league . . . Lyons and Wisner are tied for first place in the Eastern Nebraska circuit, each with six wins and two losses . . . Uehling dropped a 3-2 decision to Decatur, but still is leading in the Tri-Valley league with five wins in eight games . . . Fairbury town team bumped Diller, 10-6 . . . Minden juniors nudged Hastings, 12-9 . . . Kollmeyers top the Fremont City league standings.

PETERSON Grocers and Miller Clippers still are tied in the Kearney city softball league, each with seven wins and one loss . . . Swifts leads in the Beatrice softball loop . . . Beatrice Y. M. C. A. is sponsoring swim classes for novices . . . Engineers at the Lincoln radio stations have challenged the announcers to a softball game, without comedy, Tuesday night at Muny Field . . . If victorious, the Engineers plan to challenge the Newspapers team which beat the announcers, with comedy, last week.

British Frown On Helen's Chances

WIMBLEDON, Eng., June 20—(INS)—The chance of Mrs. Helen Wills Moody, 33-year-old San Francisco star, to become the first woman in history to win the Wimbledon tennis singles championship seven times was the focal point of interest today as the famous tournament opened.

But Mrs. Moody was not ranked as favorite. Miss Alice Marble, her blonde fellow townswoman, and Miss Jadwiga Jedrzejowska of Poland were joint favorites.

Mrs. Moody, twice beaten in preliminary tournaments, was considered a practical certainty to be a finalist. However, her only major opponent in her half of the draw is Frau Hilda Sperling of Denmark, who is hardly expected to repeat her earlier conquest of Mrs. Moody.

Don Budge of Oakland, Calif., is considered by nearly everybody to have the Wimbledon men's title in the bag.

City Leaguers In 12-Inning Battle

NO GAME TONIGHT.

The traveling Texas Black Spiders, scheduled to meet Hardys, City league-leading team in an exhibition game Monday night at Landis Field, cancelled the Monday date because of a motor accident. The Spiders were in a smash-up en route to Lincoln and notified Boss "Pug" Griffin of the Lincoln Links that they would be unable to arrive in time for the game.

Hardys broke loose in the twelfth inning to score five runs Sunday afternoon at Landis Field, protecting their first-place City league ranking with a 9-4 triumph over Robinsons. A three-run Robinson rally in the seventh deadlocked the count and it was not until the twelfth that either team could break the tie. The score:

Sarazen and Little Bid For British Open

SANDWICH, Eng., June 20—(AP)—America's bid for Henry Cotton's British open golf championship, July 6-8, was strengthened today with the entries of Gene Sarazen and Lawson Little. Among other Americans entered is Vic Ghezzi, New Jersey professional.

A total of 268 players, 10 more than last year, will play in the championship. The list includes Alfred Perry, Alfred Padgham and Cotton, the last three winners, but does not include Percy Alliss, probably Great Britain's best match player. Alliss explained rather blandly that he meant to enter but forgot.

Sarazen won the British open in 1932 here with a record 283 score, which was duplicated on the same course two years later by Cotton.

Stock Market Gains To 5 Or More Points Are Well Distributed

Optimistic Signs Seen By Traders

... leadership of steels, put on the sharpest rally in nearly six weeks today and gains running to 5c or more points were widely distributed at the close.

Brokers attributed the upswing to no particular news event, but rather to an assortment of optimistic signs that led many observers to conclude the backbone of the lengthy recession may have been broken and a forward push in business and industry likely to get under way much sooner than anticipated.

Contributing to this thinking was the announcement of administrative chieftains that the pump-priming program would be speeded up immediately the bill is signed by the president.

Covering by nervous shorts, in addition to purchases by speculative forces afraid of missing the boat on a recovery voyage, aided the upward tilt. Buying orders from abroad also were said to have been more extensive than in some time.

The list pointed ahead at the start and, despite frequent profit taking interruptions, continued to ride into higher territory. Activity quickened perceptibly, compared with the dragging proceedings lately, with transfers approximating 1,100,000 shares. It was the best day's turnover since early in April.

Bolstering sentiment was the official estimate that this week's steel mill operations for the third consecutive week would be higher. The rate was placed at 28 per cent of capacity, up .9 of a point from last week.

Beside steel stocks, motors, coppers, rubbers, farm implements, mail orders, aircrafts, oils and specialties were notably in favor. Utilities did better than usual and even the long-depressed rails registered substantial improvement.

Farm machinery shares were among the strongest. Caterpillar Tractor announced price cuts for tractors and diesel engines and other makers were expected to fall in line.

Secondary railroad loans showed the way for a rising bond department. Major commodities were again in demand. Wheat at Chicago, after a poor get-away, ended up ¾ to 1¼ per cents a bushel. Corn was ⅞ off to up . Cotton advanced around 60 cents a bale. Rubber, hide and copper futures were in the ascending column. Foreign currencies were mixed, sterling being off ⅛ of a cent at $4.96½ around mid-afternoon and the French francs up .004¼ of a cent at 2.79 cents.

Outstanding share gainers were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, General Motors, Chrysler, U. S. Rubber, Anaconda, Kennecott, American Smelting, Sears Roebuck, J. I. Case, International Harvester, Douglas Aircraft, Westinghouse, General Electric, Du Pont, Allied Chemical, American Telephone, Consolidated Edison, Santa Fe, Johns-Manville, Air Reduction, Eastman Kodak and J. C. Penney.

Fading of dollar devaluation talk, involving the hoisting of the gold price, depressed gold mining issues such as Dome, Homestake and McIntyre.

On the curb, advances were recorded for Aluminum of America, American Cyanamid "B," Creole Petroleum, Gulf Oil, Carrier Corp., Jones & Laughlin, Lion Oil, Newmont Mining and Mead Johnson.

Chiming to the monetary tinkering gossip were the comments of Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy upon his arrival from London. The envoy stated he knew nothing of any new tripartite devaluation proposal, and that any further step of this nature would sacrifice all the advantage thus for gain. He stressed that "to me it seems the day of devices is gone."

A boost in scrap copper and export copper quotations was seen as a cheering item for the red metal shares as well as other departments. Forecasts of a step-up in automobile output, at least by fall bolstered this division. Holders of rails were buoyed by thoughts of a possibly nearby increase in freight rates. Firmer prices for gasoline aided the petroleum shares.

Statistical forces advanced the suggestion part of today's buying in the stock list was due to the fact the market for some time has refused to break on the appearance of so-called "bad" news and had merely settled down to a do-nothing position. Daily volumes last week were only a little over 300,000 shares. It was recalled that, in previous year when markets have turned exceptionally dull, the eventual emergence usually has been on upside. The fact that commodities, for the past several weeks, have displayed an urge to advance, was also viewed as a bullish influence for stocks.

Wheat Prices At Chicago Advance

Largely because of attention given to advances shown by securities, wheat rose 1⅛ cents a bushel late today following earlier frequent fractional declines.

Contributing to the late bulge of wheat prices were reports of black rust on stems in spring crop areas. It was asserted stem rust was present in the Red River valley's better sections east of Valley City from Castelton to Hillsboro.

At the close, Chicago wheat futures were ¾ to 1¼c higher compared with Saturday's finish, July 78@78⅛c, Sept., 78⅞@79c, corn ⅜c off to ⅜c up, July 57⅝@57¾c Sept., 58⅜@58⅞c, and oats, ⅛ to ⅜c advanced.

Wheat averaged higher much of the time today, influenced by Nebraska reports of heavy deterioration of crops in the past week, and by inflation talk.

R. O. Cromwell, a leading crop expert, wired from Lincoln, Neb., that serious retrograding of crops there was due to shallow rooting and to orange rust in the late planted fields. The market was further stimulated by a report from H. C. Donovan, another authority after an extended trip southwest and west. He estimated damage to the winter crop from root exhaustion and rot was fully sixty million bushels from what it otherwise would have been.

Donovan said that on a trip 80 to 90 miles wide and extending from central Oklahoma to central Kansas and into southcentral Nebraska, crop damage was far worse than in 1927. Adding to the upward trend of wheat here were stock market advances. On the other hand, export demand of wheat from North America was small, and Liverpool wheat quotations, due 1 cent to 1⅛ cent lower, closed today 2⅜ to 2½c down.

Corn and oats markets were inclined to sag owing to apparent lack of new export demand. Rye followed wheat.

Provisions rose with hog values.

Around 11 a. m., wheat was unchanged to ⅜c higher compared with Saturday's finish, July 77⅜c, September 78⅛c, and corn was ⅜ off to ⅜c up, July 57½c, September 58⅞c.

NEW YORK BOND REVIEW

After several weeks of persistent decline rail loans turned today and scored wide recoveries. Other band market groups followed the carriers to higher ground.

Trading circles reported improvement support for the rails, based in part on belief that pessimism incident to the steep May-June fall had been overcome.

Oustanding in the reversal were New York Central & Hudson River 4½s, Northern Pacific 6s, Southern Pacific collateral 4s, Southern Railway 6½s, Wabash first 6s and Erie General 6s, up 2 to around 5 points at the start of the final hour.

Gains running to a point or more were recorded by loans of Great Northern, Santa Fe, M-K-T, Missouri Pacific Pennsylvania and Nickel Plate. Other corporate gainers included Youngstown Sheet & Tube 4s, Walworth 4s, International Hyro Electric 6s, American & Foreign Power 5s and International telephone, 5s.

U. S. governments were steady with several treasuries up 2-32ds. Italian issues were strong leaders of the foreign list.

The market followed an upward slant up to the close. Baltimore & Ohio refunding 5s of 1995 added 1¾ at 17½. Northern Pacific 44s were 2½ higher at 70 and Studebaker 6s advanced 2 to 63. A few losses of as much as 3-32ds of a point turned up in the government list.

Search For Aged Man Who Disappeared After Leaving 'Goodbye' Note

GRAND ISLAND, June 20 — (AP)—Police and county officials Monday continued search for O. G. Clayton, 72, father of W. E. and Walter Clayton, prominent Grand Island druggists, who disappeared sometime early Sunday morning. Officials fear the aged man, who left a brief note of farewell on the seat of W. E. Clayton's car, has taken his life.

The son discovered the note late Sunday morning, and promptly contacted police who in turn sent out a statewide alarm both by telephone and radio. Later sand pits in and near the city were checked.

The note did not reveal a suicide intent. It merely stated that he was mailing his postoffice key and finished with a terse "goodbye."

Police said the aged man apparently left his home sometime after 1 a. m. Sunday. He was last seen at eleven o'clock Saturday night and appeared in normal condition.

American Net Ace Wins First Match

WIMBLEDON, Eng., June 20—(AP)—Donald Budge of Oakland, Calif., holder of every major world tennis championship, opened the defense of his all-England title today with an easy victory over Kenneth Gandar-Dower of England. The scores were 6-2, 6-2, 6-3.

The big redhead, who was given the customary honor of playing the first match of the tournament on the center court, slapped the ball with majestic indifference and seldom left the baseline. Gandar-Dower's soft lobbing game was pie for Don.

Henner Henkel of Germany, another seeded star, opened with a 6-2, 6-0, 6-2 victory over D. M. Bull of England, while Kho Sin Kie of China eliminated Herbert Hare of England, 6-3, 6-4, 6-4.

Budge, suffering from a sore throat, went to bed immediately after beating Gandar-Dower.

"I picked it up coming across the channel," said Don, "and I'm going to do nothing but rest until I feel better."

RCA Dealers Meet

Ralph Bergstresesr, of the Kansas City RCA district office, presided over a meeting of local RCA Victor dealers at the Lincoln hotel Monday afternoon. He discussed new radio models, the raw materials that go into the making of a radio, and the construction of radio tubes. The meeting was sponsored by Sidles company, under the direction of Louis Gillain.

Council May Read 3 New Ordinances

Assessment Districts Are Likely On H Street; No Action On Library Board

That three ordinances creating special assessment districts on H street between Thirty-seventh and Fortieth streets, may be read by the city council a first time Monday, was indicated at noon. Objections by members of the council because of approximately $400 of delinquent taxes being outstanding against the property, were to be removed, it was understotod, through one of the larger property owners in the proposed districts, paying the taxes.

The three measures were submitted to the council a week ago but held up when it was learned that the taxes had not been paid. The districts to be created are paving, water and sanitary sewer improvements.

Terms Expire in July.

No action was to be taken by the council on the appointment of three members to the city library board, effective July 1, Mayor Copeland said. The terms of Miss Mariel Gere, Fred Ress and August Eiche expire at that time. The matter of successors to the members whose terms end in mid-year, was raised in a communication to the council from the Lincoln branch of the American Association of University Women, who asked that any one of seven persons named in the letter be appointed. Among the names was that of Miss Gere. Other names were Mrs. George H. Rogers, president of the branch, Miss Clare McPhee, Mrs. Roy M. Green, Miss Louise Pound, Mrs. J. M. Mayhew, and Mrs. C. K. Morse.

Other than to refer the proposal to the council, no action was taken by the council on a request from residents of Havelock, University Place, Bethany and the state farm area, for a swimming pool, skating pond, and other recreational facilities. "The petition has not come to the attention of the council," Mayor Copeland said, adding "nothing can be done before the next fiscal year, which begins September 5."

According to the mayor, the petitioners "are more than willing to co-operate with the council. They do not want anything at the expense of another part of the city. Neither do they want the entire improvement at one time. They have said they hope the council will frame an improvement that will meet their needs over a period of years."

Whatever the council does, the mayor emphasized, probably will be through the aid of the WPA.

F. D. R. Tackles A Mass Of Work

HYDE PARK, N. Y., June 20—(AP)—Rested and in gay mood from a week-end cruise down the New England coast and up the Hudson river, President Roosevelt plunged today into a mass of work —mostly concerned with bills passed by congress in its closing days.

He said he would start immediately on the bills which require his signature within the next 10 days if they are to become law.

Mr. Roosevelt declined to answer a question regarding discussion in Washington that a special session of congress might be called to consider railroad legislation.

The president was not decided whether he will leave here for Washington Wednesday or Thursday night.

Discussing his plans for trips from Washington after this one, Mr. Roosevelt expressed hope that he would be able to see the varsity race in the Poughkeepsie, N. Y., regatta on June 27.

He speaks at Wilmington, Del., that morning at the celebration of the 300th anniversary of the landing of a colony of Swedes and Finns and plans to reach Poughkeepsie, near Hyde Park, that afternoon.

At Son's Wedding.

Mr. Roosevelt had been in New England for the wedding in Nahant, Mass., on Saturday of his son, John, to Anne Lindsay Clark.

The chief executive cruised from Salem, Mass., to Poughkeepsie over the week-end in the government yacht Potomac. He was accompanied all of the way by his son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, jr., and his son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. John Boettiger.

Mr. and Mrs. Elliott Roosevelt, another son and daughter-in-law, left the Potomac at Buzzards Bay, Mass., Sunday morning enroute to their home in Fort Worth, Tex.

The president arrived here this morning 12 hours later than he originally had planned. Part of the delay was due to fog, but members of the presidential party said that after the fog had lifted Mr. Roosevelt held the boat at Buzzards Bay, so Elliott could get a longer sleep.

Man Released From Prison Saturday Is Held In Theft Case

Mack Smith, 42, released from the penitentiary Saturday was arrested by police Sunday morning in an alley near Seventeenth and O streets and is being held for questioning in connection with theft of a suit of clothes and a mail pouch.

Quick Start On Relief And Works Program Pledged

WASHINGTON, June 20—(AP)—Heads of five government spending agencies pledged today a quick start on the administration's $3,753,000,000 relief and public works program.

Their detailed outlines for hundreds of bridges, sewers and roads, schools, airports, low-cost housing developments, dams, harbors and flood control units awaited only the president's signing of the bill.

In addition, the agriculture department studied disbursement of parity payments to farmers growing wheat, corn, cotton, tobacco and rice. Loans for farmers unable to get credit and subsistence grants for low-income farmers also are being arranged.

The five federal officials discussed their programs last night in a radio forum. Here is a summary of what they said:

Harry L. Hopkins, works progress administrator: The $1,325,000,000 paid to WPA workers will flow into trade channels in their living costs—$515,000,000 for food, $220,000,000 for rent, $150,000,000 for household expenses, and the rest for medical care, transportation and other items.

Private Jobs To 250,000.

"The added business through the purchase of materials alone will give indirect, full-time private jobs to 250,000 workers, entirely apart from those on WPA rolls.

Howard A. Gray, assistant administrator of public works: "It is our firm purpose x x x to employ all speed so that large orders for materials and supplies will be placed without delay and so that benefit comes to private industry before the builders start construction."

For each of the billion dollars to be spent by PWA in the next two years, he said, 36 cents will go to builders on the job and 64 cents to the producers of building materials.

Nathan Straus, United States housing administrator: Through the slum-clearance and low-cost housing program, "slum dwellers will benefit by being given an opportunity for new and better lives, wage earners will benefit by being called back to productive jobs; taxpayers will benefit x x x for when you tear down the slums it means less disease, less juvenile delinquency, less crime and reduced expenses for hospitals, insane asylums, reformatories and jails."

100 Flood Control Projects.

Brig. Gen. John J. Kingman, acting chief of army engineers: In more than 100 flood control projects and more than 400 river and harbor projects, "75 per cent or more of all the money spent on such work goes for labor, either direct or indirect; and we have plans already prepared which will permit us to start work immediately."

Secretary Wallace: Through the ever-normal granary system, "the farm plan will safeguard consumers against shortages and extremely high prices, and protect the farmers against extremely low prices."

A WPA survey concluded, meanwhile, that the influence of business cycles, improvements of machinery and the steady growth of the labor supply make it appear certain that the unemployment problem will be a lasting one.

It said the "outmoded local relief of the pre-industrial era" was inadequate to meet the shock of a major depression.

At Least 1,120 Have Perished In U. S. Train Wrecks Last 62 Years

(By the Associated Press.)

At least 1,120 persons have lost their lives in train wrecks in the United States during the last 62 years.

Yesterday's catastrophe at Miles City, Mont., recalled a similar accident near Ashtabula, O., in 1876, when a train plunged into the Ashtabula river, killing 60 persons.

Railroad officials pointed out that wrecks have been comparatively rare in the last 10 years with the development of modern equipment and signal systems and added care in inspections. The interstate commerce commission and the bureau of railroad economics reported their records showed only 10 fare-paying passengers killed in railroad accidents in 1935-36-37.

Many of the disasters in the earlier days of railroading were caused by the collapse of bridges and trestles. Eighty-one persons were killed and 372 injured on Aug. 10, 1887, when a 16-coach excursion train plunged through a trestle and burned at Chatsworth, Ill.

On Sept. 27, 1923, a train went through a bridge into Big Muddy river, near Casper, Wyo., killing 37 persons. Nineteen passengers lost their lives when a train plunged through a bridge into the Arkansas river at Salida, Colo., in September, 1926.

Nine persons were killed and 40 injured in July, 1929, when a bridge collapsed and a train fell into a swollen creek near Denver. A train plunged off a bridge at Boston March 14, 1887, killing 23 persons and injuring 100.

Collisions also have been a major cause of fatal wrecks.

In February, 1921, 30 were killed and 20 injured when two trains crashed head-on at Porter, Ind. Forty lost their lives when two trains collided near Sulphur Springs, Mo., Aug. 6, 1922.

Two trains collided near Hackettstown, N. J., in 1925 killing 39 and injuring 50 and Seut. 15, 1933, 14 persons were killed and 30 injured when trains came together near Binghamton, N. Y.

Vancouver Unemployed Stage Riot

Smash Windows As They Are Routed From Two Buildings

VANCOUVER, B. C., June 20—(AP)—Three downtown riots in which crowds of unemployed shattered store windows, fought police and besieged police headquarters, brought provincial authorities hurrying here today for an investigation.

Two officers and 35 jobless required hospital treatment after the disorders yesterday. A trail of broken windows, involving 39 stores and the postoffice, lay in the wake of the riots.

Premier T. D. Pattullo was enroute here from Victoria, provincial capital, to investigate the tense situation. Mayor G. C. Miller warned he would permit no more unemployed sit-down strikes such as led to yesterdays riots.

Scores of downtown store fronts were boarded up last night because of the window smashing orgy by 300 unemployed after they had been evicted from the central postoffice by police tear gas and riot sticks.

Demand Works Relief Program.

The jobless had occupied the postoffice and civic art gallery since May 20 in an effort to bring before government authorities their demands for a relief works program. The art gallery group dispersed quietly after tear gas was used.

The postoffice group was driven from the building by Royal Canadian mounted and city police after Premier Pattullo warned in Victoria "the situation in Vancouver can no longer be tolerated."

Postoffice windows and glass wickets were broken as the jobless streamed from the building. These wielded any hard object they could grab, smashing store fronts as they raced down the streets.

Kingsley Expounds Value of Tri-County

Number Of Radio Broadcasts Cut To Three; Private Firms To Be Heard

Dr. D. W. Kingsley, president of the Tri-county power and irrigation district, told a radio audience Sunday over KFAB that if the irrigation and power development had been operating in Gosper, Phelps, Adams, and Kearney counties last year the crop production would have exceeded $18,000,000 in the four counties.

"Add to this the returns from increased livestock feeding, sale of electric energy, increased purchase of appliances, and you have a small idea of the purchasing power which will be made available by the project," he continued.

The millions turning over many times before they get out of Nebraska will mean a great deal to the state, he said. If the Kingsley dam had been built in 1935 and 1936, he ventured, the drouth would have been minimized by storage of irrigation waters. He said the state will also benefit from increased taxes through higher valuations, thus decreasing the tax burdens of other sections of the state.

In the interview conducted by Gerald Miller, it was explained that the projected series of 12 broadcasts by PWA on the power and irrigation projects has been cut to three programs, which will be followed by three programs conducted by private power companies. The radio station, it was explained wants to present both sides of a controversial question.

Simple Rites Held For Victor Krause

Victor Krause, Lincoln interior decorator, who died in a California airliner crash March 1, was buried with brief and simple committal services Sunday afternoon at the grave in Wyuka cemetery. Rev. H. H. Marsden read the Episcopal service and the Holy Trinity church quartet sang "Peace, Perfect Peace" and "Nunc Dimittis." More than 200 attended the service.

Norris Hopes To Get 'Streamline' Proposal Through Next Session

WASHINGTON, June 20—(AP)—Senator Norris (Ind-Neb.), undaunted by failure at this session, will bring back to congress next year a proposal to streamline the method of amending the constitution. He would let the people vote directly on amendments, as an alternative to present ratification by legislatures or conventions.

4,595 Chinese Civilians Die In Aerial Raids

CANTON, June 20—(AP)—Chinese officials declared today, 4,595 civilians were killed by Japanese air attacks in Kwangtung province during the nine months from Aug. 31, 1937, to June 7.

They said "upwards" of 1,500 were killed in Canton alone during the eleven days from May 28 to June 7, when Japanese air raiders bombed the city every day, and at least 5,500 others were injured.

The nine-month toll, they reported, also included 8,555 civilians injured and 5,027 buildings destroyed in the south China province.

The Japanese, they said, made 1,400 raids—including 800 over Canton—and on 5,986 individual flights dropped 10,292 bombs.

Franks Win Judgment

(Special to The Star.)

SCOTTSBLUFF, June 20—Holding that the gas which caused the Frank building in Scottsbluff to explode came from a main and not a feeder line, the District court directed that the North Central Gas Compaany pay $3,577.61 damages to Owen Frank and W. E. Frank, who owned the building.

Nazis Stop Berlin Jew Purchases

Forbidden To Buy Goods In Aryan Stores; Shops Smeared

BERLIN, June 20—(AP)—For Jews of Berlin another day of persecution today extended what probably is the greatest wave of anti-Semitism since the nazis came to power five years ago.

Now, after three weeks of raids and defacement of Jewish-owned stores, they found that, at least in the borough of Weissensee, they were forbidden to buy in Aryan food shops.

Placard-pasting crews appeared in that northern suburb, but instead of the Jewish stores that were the objectives of red paint crews, Aryan stores were the goal this time.

Aryan grocers, bakers and butchers were surprised to find large red posters stuck on their windows reading: "We don't sell to Jews."

Jews, arriving at their places of business, found that Sunday night paint squads had invaded the downtown district and had left no Jewish shop or nameplate untouched by their red paint.

Mass Arrests.

An abatement had been expected in the activity of the red paint squads, scattered lootings of Jewish shops and mass arrests with subsequent confinement of Jews in concentration camps.

The fact that the heart of Berlin now is being invaded, however, is regarded as an indication that the paint crews intend to brand as many Jewish-owned businesses as possible.

Dependable sources reported also that all party functionaries had orders months ago to check carefully into the racial ties of tenants in every Berlin apartment house and, especially, to keep track of Jews living in each district.

Intimidated and terrified by the unceasing campaign against them, many Jewish shops remained closed this morning.

Fire Damages Machinery In Cook Printing Office

(Special to The Star.)

TECUMSEH, Neb., June 20—Fire in the office of the Cook Courier, weekly paper at Cook, Neb., wrought considerable damage. The fire originated in a leak in a gas line to the heating equipment of a linotype pot, becoming ignited and the interior of the shop was soon enveloped in flames. Chemical extinguishers were used and the town fire department put a little water on the fire before it was extinguished.

The linotype was completely ruined, and there was damage to the news press and other equipment in the room. The paper is published by Marion Packwood.

Minnesota Political Leadership At Stake In Monday Primary

Gov. Benson Asks Renomination Against Petersen, His Outspoken Foe

MINNEAPOLIS, June 20—(AP)—Leadership of Minnesota's dominant political party—farmer-labor—was at stake in today's state primary election.

Gov. Elmer A. Benson sought renomination for his second term on the farmer-labor ticket against his most outspoken critic, Hjalmar Petersen, former governor and now a member of the state railroad and warehouse commission.

Benson, who succeeded Petersen as governor in 1937, has the endorsement of the state farmer-labor convention and has been a supporter of President Roosevelt's New Deal program.

While the national administration steered clear of the Minnesota primary campaign and Postmaster General James A. Farley sent word that "I will not take sides" in this state, Governor Benson recently obtained presidential support for ouster of Victor Christgau as Minnesota WPA administrator.

Roosevelt Upholds Ouster.

Benson forces had accused Christgau of playing politics with WPA and being unfriendly to labor and Harry Hopkins, national WPA administrator, finally removed him last month. Christgau appealed to the president, who upheld Hopkins.

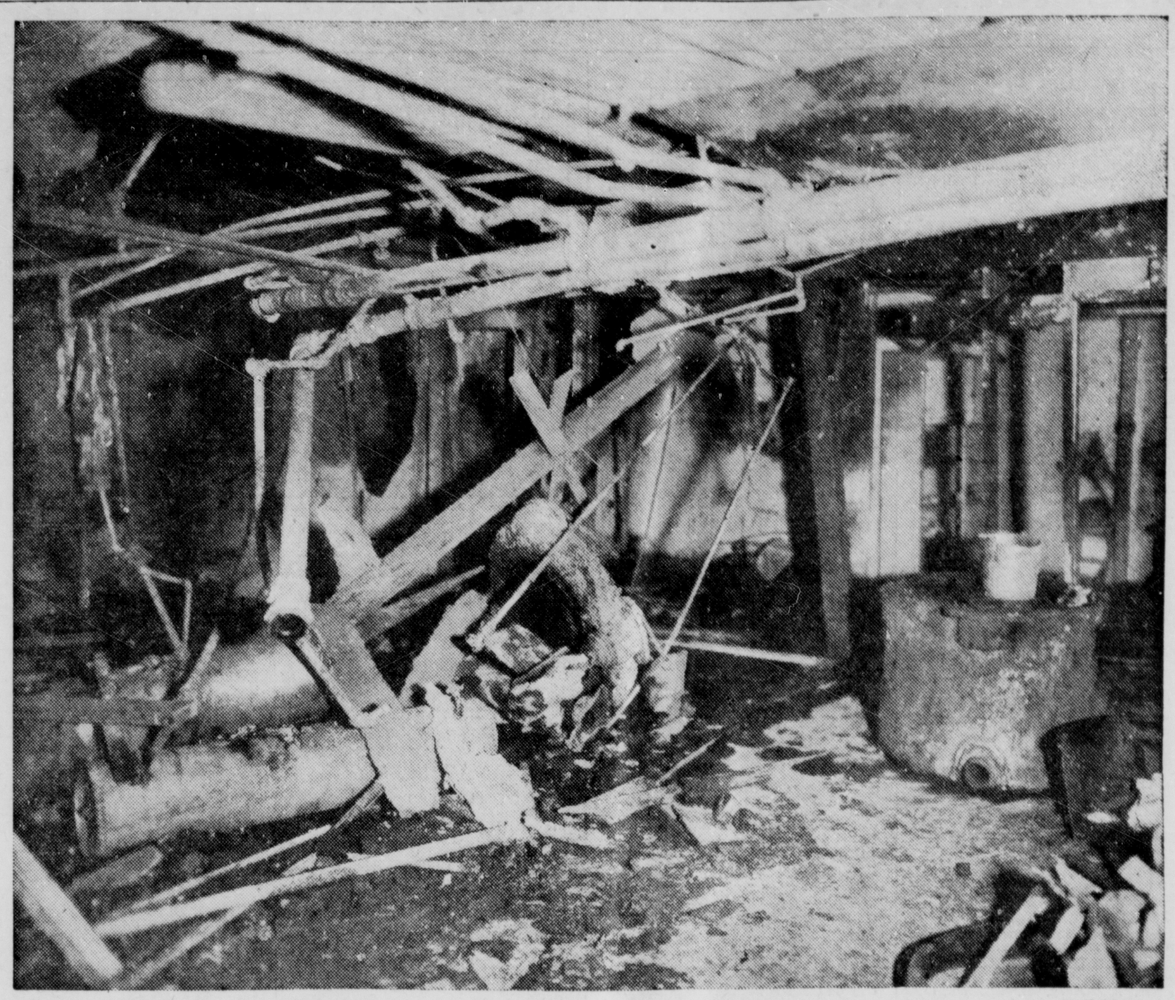

Petersen contended the ouster was an indication of manipulation to force a coalition between the democrats and farmer-laborites in Minnesota. Petersen also criticized what he called the "farmer-labor inside machine."

There were six candidates for the democratic nomination for governor, four for the republican nomination for governor, and each party will choose nominees for congress in nine districts and for other state offices.

Spanish-American Veterans Meeting At North Platte

Nearly 300 Delegates In Parade As The Annual Encampment Opens

NORTH PLATTE, Neb., June 20—(AP)—Nearly 300 delegates to the annual Nebraska encampment of United Spanish-American war veterans paraded through the business district here Sunday as the three-day meeting got under way.

The parade preceded an address by George A. Eberly of Lincoln, junior vice commander-in-chief, who pointed out eight generations have served under the American flag.

"It is your greatest duty to pass it unto the ninth generation still a symbol of honor, liberty and peace as it has been for 161 years," he said.

The delegates, with 90 members of the auxiliary, toured the Platte valley public power and irrigation project during the afternoon, and attended a dinner in honor of past department commanders tonight. The Rev. E. C. Raue was the principal speaker at memorial services held following the dinner.

Platte Valley Baptist Conference Is Closed

OMAHA, June 20—(AP)—The Platte Valley Baptist conference closed its four-day meeting here Sunday after selecting Oakland, Neb., for its 1939 session.

Nearly 200 delegates from churches in Nebraska, Wyoming and Colorado, affiliated with the Swedish Baptist general conference attended.

Among the speakers Sunday was Mrs. M. B. Fritzelle, whose husband went from a pastorate at Hordville, Neb., to a mission station in West Africa three years ago. He died shortly after his arrival and Mrs. Fritzelle carried on his work there. Another speaker was Sidney B. Nelson of Chicago, editor of the young people's publications for the general conference.

Rev. Ellsworth Smith of New York Preaches Here

Rev. Ellsworth Smith, of New York, described the work of the home mission society as guest preacher at the First Baptist church Sunday morning. He is the rural secretary of the Northern Baptist convention.

Rev. Smith is in Lincoln as an instructor at the Nebraska Rural Christian Fellowship Institute opening at the agricultural college Monday.

He described mission work as including the development of religious education in thinly populated areas; financial aid to the churches in stricken areas; charity aid; work among foreign language groups; and work in the slum districts of large cities. His field, he said, was the training of rural ministers. A large crowd attended. Miss Kathryn Dean sang a solo.

John Roosevelt And His Bride On Canada Isle

CAMPOBELLO ISLAND, N. B., June 20—(AP)—Another pair of honeymooning Roosevelts found refuge today on this Canadian island where the president spent much of his youth.

John Roosevelt, fourth and youngest son of the president, and his bride, the former Anne Lindsay Clark, followed the course taken a year ago by Franklin, jr., and Ethel du Pont Roosevelt, in coming to the seclusion of the president's rambling cottage. It faces the American shore across an arm of Passamaquoddy bay.

John and Anne asked and got the privacy they wanted after the tumult of a fashionable wedding at Nahant, Mass.

John said he and his bride would remain here a month before going to Quebec City to board the Canadian liner Lady Somers for a West Indies cruise.

To a welcoming committee which met the crude scow-ferry that brought the newlyweds from Lubec, Me., late yesterday, the bridegroom smiled and said "we're glad to be here."
